

U.S. senators 'hit targets'

WASHINGTON (R) — A self-described former addict in Colombia's Medellin cocaine cartel, testifying in Congress under heavy guard, said Wednesday he believes the Colombian drug lords have hit men in the United States and might even try to kill the president or members of Congress. "Some of you may be victims of (assassination) attempts," Colombia Diego Velez Salinas replied when Senator Sam Nunn asked if he thought his former narcotics underworld bosses might try to kill Americans in retaliation for Colombian-American attempts to crush the drug trade. "Maybe the president of the United States would be a victim of the actions of drug traffickers," Velez said. Testifying from behind a screen at hearings of a Senate investigative committee, Velez, who is in the U.S. witness protection programme, conceded he was speculating on the assassination issue but asserted that the Colombian drug barons have succeeded in the United States right now.

Jordan Times

An independent political daily published by the Jordan Press Foundation جوردان تايمز صحيفة سياسية مستقلة بالانجليزية عن المؤسسة الصحفية الأردنية، الرأي

Special supplement on Indian Trade Exhibition
pages 5, 6, 7 & 8

Volume 14 Number 4187

AMMAN THURSDAY-FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 14-15, 1989, SAFAR 13-14, 1410

Price: Jordan 100 fils; Syria 1 pound; Lebanon 1 pound; Saudi Arabia 1.50 riyals; UAE 1.50 dirhams; Great Britain 25 pence

Al Hussein receives rousing welcome in Maan

King: Jordan remains steadfast in support for Palestinians

MAAN (Petra) — His Majesty King Hussein said Wednesday Jordan would continue its support for the Palestinians under occupation until they regain their rights and freedom in their own homeland.

"We will translate into deeds the principles in which we believe so that we can fulfil the aspirations, no matter how long the way is and regardless of the difficulties and the challenges coming our way," King Hussein said in a speech at a public rally held at the southern city.

The city's public squares were bedecked with flags, portraits of King Hussein and other decorative signs and the streets were thronged by cheering crowds welcoming the King.

The King told the crowds Maan served as the first stage and a starting point in modern Arab history, raising the standards of the Great Arab Revolt, which broke out to defend the Arab Nation and to save the Arabs from conspiracies.

"We will follow in the footsteps of the principles and of the Great Arab Revolt, offering sacrifice and committed to the defence of the Arab Order," King Hussein said.

King Hussein said he was determined to pursue all endeavours to make Jordan a source of power for the Arab World.

"Jordan, which has been guarding the longest confrontation lines in the face of external challenges and dangers, will remain steadfast and will pursue all efforts to bolster Arab unity regardless of hardships," the King said.

Jordan, he added, will face the challenges and will never compromise or bargain over any Arab rights and Arab freedom.

The King told the rally that his visit marked the start of a series of meetings with the people of Maan to discuss their problems and to find proper solutions.

Ministers, local officials and notable Maan personalities accompanied the King at the rally, which was attended by thousands of residents.

A number of notables delivered speeches at the outset of the rally paying tribute to King Hussein's endeavours at domestic, pan-Arab and international levels to serve the Arab Nation.

The speakers also paid tribute to the leaders of the Great Arab Revolt who led the march towards freedom and unity for the Arab World.

The King was accompanied on the visit to Maan by Prime Minister Sharif Zaid Ibn Shaker, Royal Court Chief Mudar Badran, Deputy Prime Minister and Interior Minister Salem Masa'deh and a number of senior officials.

His Majesty King Hussein shakes hands with Maan residents during a visit he paid to the southern city Wednesday (Petra photo)

American diplomat's car set ablaze in Jerusalem

OCCUPIED JERUSALEM (Agencies) — The car of a U.S. diplomat was set ablaze in Arab Jerusalem Wednesday in a rare anti-American attack in the 21-month-old Palestinian uprising.

The U.S. consulate in west Jerusalem called the attack on the car of David Wynn, its deputy principal officer, an act of vandalism. Police said they suspected Palestinian nationalists.

Attacks on U.S. targets have been uncommon in uprising. In February 1988, fire bombs were thrown at an Arab Jerusalem U.S. consular building. That attack caused no damage or injuries.

In the occupied Gaza Strip, Nasr hospital said it received the body of a Palestinian suspected of collaborating with Israeli authorities. Residents of Khan Younis identified him as Jibara Mohammad Abu Taha, 33. He was stabbed repeatedly.

Palestinians in the Gaza town of Rafah said 29-year-old Suleiman Jarbua, another alleged informant, was stabbed and severely injured in a separate incident. Israeli forces arrested a Rafah Arab who worked in an army-run workshop, accusing him of membership in a popular committee of the uprising.

A military spokesman said it was unusual for Palestinians employed in army workshops, normally mechanical repair shops, to be detained for taking part in the revolt.

Israeli army Chief of Staff Dan Shomron has ordered Israeli soldiers not to humiliate or mistreat Arab protesters or use excessive force against them, a military spokesman said Tuesday.

Several of the 641 Palestinians killed during the uprising were beaten to death by Israeli soldiers. Palestinians regularly complain of maltreatment and beatings by troops during raids on their villages or after they are arrested.

Early in the revolt, soldiers tried to bury four Arabs alive in a West Bank village.

In a letter sent to all soldiers serving in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, Lieutenant-General Shomron wrote:

"I want to clarify and emphasize that force should be used to achieve a mission according to the law and the orders of the army and there must be no deviation."

Under no circumstances should force be used as a means of punishment, he wrote.

Shomron ordered soldiers to open fire according to army regulations, recently loosened by Israeli Defence Minister Yitzhak Rabin to allow soldiers to shoot at masked suspects who resist arrest.

Troops should also behave in a "respectable manner" towards international bodies operating in the occupied territories like the International Red Cross and enable them to carry out their tasks without disturbances, Shomron said.

During the uprising, international bodies, including the United Nations Relief and Works Agency (UNRWA), have complained of harassment by Israeli troops.

Shomron also ordered soldiers not to stop ambulances or delay medical treatment of the wounded. Palestinians have said that several Arabs died on their way to hospital when ambulances were delayed by the army.

An Israeli policeman checks the soles of a Palestinian's shoes after an arson attempt in occupied Jerusalem

Israel gags debate on Egyptian plan after U.S. welcomes it

TEL AVIV (Agencies) — Israeli leaders Wednesday discussed ideas put up by Egypt on ways to break an impasse over Middle East peace efforts, but then clamped an unusual gag on further debate.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir met his top three ministers — Vice Premier Shimon Peres, Foreign Minister Moshe Arens and Defence Minister Yitzhak Rabin — to discuss 10 proposals made by Egypt in response to an Israeli initiative for the occupied territories.

After the meeting, aides were unusually tight-lipped. "It was an internal discussion, and it doesn't mean we are ready to talk about details of the 'peace' plan," Yossi Abimeir, Shamir's spokesman, told Reuters.

The same clampdown was evident when the 12-member inner cabinet met afterwards. Shamir barred discussion on the proposals by Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak, Israel Radio reported.

Egypt has put forward ideas to free the deadlock over an Israeli plan for Palestinian elections in the occupied territories.

The Cairo proposals include easing free elections, allowing Arab Jerusalem Palestinians to participate and accepting the principle of exchanging occupied land for peace.

A veteran Israeli statesman, former Foreign Minister Abba Eban, just back from Cairo, said Egypt was "quite likely" to invite Israeli and Palestinian delegations for talks on details of the Israeli initiative.

Israel in May proposed Arabs elect representatives to negotiate interim self-rule in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Eban told Reuters that Egyptian ministers said Cairo planned to nominate a delegation to discuss elections. The delegates would comprise Palestinians who would be acceptable to Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organisation (PLO).

"(Ministers) spoke of a picture of a Palestinian delegation meeting Israelis. They would be mostly from the territories and one or two would be professors who would not be objectionable," Eban told Reuters.

U.S. welcome

The Egyptian plan received careful praise Tuesday from the U.S. government.

Secretary of State James Baker is in the process of sounding out Middle East leaders about Mubarak's ideas. Baker met last week with Israeli Defence Minister Yitzhak Rabin and Tuesday with His Royal Highness Crown

Prince Hassan

"We continue to encourage all parties to find ways to launch an Israeli-Palestinian dialogue to discuss the Israeli election initiative," Margaret Tutwiler, the State Department spokeswoman, said afterwards. "To the extent these 10 points can be helpful, in that regard we welcome Egypt's efforts."

In Tunis, a senior PLO official said the United States had dropped its opposition to Palestinian exiles taking part in negotiations. The official, who asked not to be named, told Reuters that Mubarak briefed Yasser Arafat, chairman of the PLO, of the change in U.S. policy at a meeting in Tunis last Friday.

In the latest round of its dialogue with the PLO in Tunis on Aug. 14, the United States rejected a PLO proposal that non-PLO Palestinians from both outside and inside the West Bank and Gaza Strip discuss the elections proposal with Israel.

Israel also opposed the idea because the Zionist state does not recognise Palestinians in exile as part of the problem.

The PLO official said the organisation had no confirmation of the change from the United States and that differences over agenda and forum could prevent a meeting taking place.

Hungary says open-border policy will continue

BERLIN (Agencies) — Hungary said Wednesday that its borders would remain open for refugees seeking passage to the West, and an East German newspaper said it was time to ask why skilled citizens were fleeing the Communist country.

In Austria, the Interior Ministry said 12,158 East Germans had passed through that country en route to West Germany in the two days that refugees have been taking advantage of Hungary's newly opened border.

"The Hungarian government's policy of opening the country's borders will continue," Ferenc Somogyi, the number two official in the Foreign Ministry, said in Budapest.

As long as a third country is willing to accept refugees from other East bloc countries, Hungary will allow them to leave, he said.

"There are agreements with other Warsaw Pact countries similar to the one Hungary just suspended with East Germany, and these agreements are no longer in line with Hungary's newly assumed international responsibilities, such as our having signed the Geneva convention," Somogyi said.

"We are working to bring these various agreements into harmony with (our) new foreign policy," he added.

Somogyi said the border policy was consistent with Hungary's status as a signatory of the recent U.N. convention on refugees. Hungary is the only East bloc country to sign that convention.

Meanwhile the tide of refugees entering West Germany receded to a trickle and some reception camps were half-empty as recent arrivals left for new homes and jobs.

Border police in Passau, the main reception centre in West Germany, said most of the 9,500 registered there had already moved on and the flow of newcomers had slackened off. But Bavarian officials said they still expected the final total to reach 15,000.

"The situation has quietened down considerably," Interior Ministry spokesman Detlef Flotho told reporters. "Individual travellers are arriving steadily but no longer in the mass proportions of Monday and early Tuesday."

In Prague, Western diplomatic sources said most of the 400 East Germans occupying West Germany's embassy had abandoned their bid to reach the West and left the mission, although 25 others had taken refuge by climbing a garden wall.

East German lawyer Wolfgang Vogel assured them that if they returned to East Germany, they would receive legal aid to leave the Communist country legally and could return to their jobs, the sources said. There were still between 150 and 180 people in the embassy.

Hardline Czechoslovakia has refused to allow East Germans to leave its territory via the West German embassy, in contrast to the huge exodus permitted by Hungary.

West German officials said refugees were being distributed throughout the 11 federal states.

Most wanted to settle in the states with the biggest quotas, Bavaria and North Rhine-Westphalia, and there were no known cases of anyone being sent anywhere against his will.

Josef Heisl, border police chief in Passau, said about a fifth of the refugees wanted to move to West Berlin but would have to have their cars behind because the enclave city is ringed by East German territory.

The West German government warned East Germans who had left their homeland without permission not to return there on visits as they could face prosecution.

East Germans arriving in Passau have been quickly snapped up — some on their first day — by West German employers short of staff. Workers skilled in metalworking, electrical installation and other trades are particularly sought after.

Israel must agree to relinquish occupied lands — Crown Prince

WASHINGTON (Agencies) — His Royal Highness Crown Prince Hassan said that Israel must agree to relinquish the West Bank and Gaza Strip in exchange for peace, and that the Zionist state was trying to drive a wedge between Palestinians and the Palestinian Liberation Organisation (PLO).

In a major policy speech here Tuesday night, Prince Hassan said Jordan had no intention to represent the Palestinians. At a news conference earlier, he dismissed as a "pipe dream" the idea among some Israeli politicians that Jordan would agree to a deal to resume its formal links — of the West Bank.

Speaking after meetings with U.S. President George Bush and Secretary of State James Baker, the Crown Prince said Israel and the United States should accept the PLO as the legitimate representative of the Palestinians. And, he said, the United States should recognise that the PLO is entitled to a pivotal role in any peace negotiations.

Denouncing a plan by Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir for elections among Palestinians of the West Bank and Gaza, the Crown Prince said: "The purpose is to drive a wedge between them and their recognised leadership."

Prince Hassan said an overall agreement could only be negotiated at an international peace conference that included the PLO and the Soviet Union.

"Jordan will not represent the Palestinian people at the conference," he said. "Nor will it negotiate the settlement of the Palestinian problem on behalf of the PLO."

He said Jordan was willing to attend such a peace conference as part of a joint delegation with the PLO.

The Crown Prince, referring to the West Bank, Gaza, the Golan Heights and Arab Jerusalem, said Jordan did not accept the acquisition of territory by war.

"Israeli withdrawal from the occupied territories has to be the basis for the settlement of the Arab-Israeli conflict and the establishment of a just and lasting peace," he said.

Earlier Tuesday, a plan by Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak for Palestinian elections received cautious praise from the U.S. State Department.

Mubarak's plan is coupled with a demand that Israel accept the idea it should trade land for peace. Negotiations for an overall settlement of the Arab-Israeli dispute would be held three to five years after limited Palestinian self-rule began.

Shamir has steered clear of any plan that seems to commit Israel to relinquishing West Bank and Gaza.

Mubarak advanced the proposals as refinements to Shamir's plan for Palestinian elections.

Baker is in the process of sounding out Mideast leaders about Mubarak's ideas. He met last week with Israeli Defence Minister Yitzhak Rabin and Tuesday with Crown Prince Hassan.

Mubarak is expected to visit Washington within a few weeks, followed by Shamir in November.

Other elements of Mubarak's proposal include permitting

Palestinians who live in Arab Jerusalem to participate in the elections and supervision of the voting by international observers.

Prince Hassan told reporters after he saw Baker that the Bush administration should permit PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat to address the United Nations in New York.

"We think Arafat should be granted diplomatic recognition," Hassan said after a 45-minute meeting with Baker.

At a news conference later, Hassan called Mubarak's proposal worthwhile, but said a settlement of the Arab-Israeli dispute required an international peace conference.

"We see the Egyptian proposals as a mechanism for holding elections," he said.

Hassan met with Bush at the White House for about 15 minutes. He told telling reporters that they discussed generalities.

"I had the very moving impression of the president's personal concern towards these developments," the Crown Prince said.

Prince Hassan said the talks dealt with "regional issues, particularly the situation in the occupied Arab territories, the suffering of the Palestinian people, and the situation in the Lebanon."

The Crown Prince said the discussions also dealt with the situation between Iraq and Iran.

Present at the meeting were Deputy Prime Minister and Foreign Minister Marwan Qasem, Planning Minister Ziad Fariz, and the Jordanian ambassador to the United States.

Arab mediation panel on Lebanon begins talks

NICOSIA (Agencies) — Syria has told an Arab League peace committee meeting in Jeddah that it will withdraw its troops from Lebanon only if Israel does the same, diplomats said Wednesday.

The foreign ministers of the committee members — Algeria, Morocco and Saudi Arabia — met Wednesday to decide if they should resume peace efforts they suspended at the end of July, the Saudi Press Agency (SPA) said.

Diplomats and officials quoted by Reuters said they expected the ministers to go ahead with a new drive to end six months of fighting in Beirut between Syrian troops, their Lebanese allies, and the forces of army chief Michel Aoun.

More than 800 people have been killed in the shelling which started in March when Aoun, who commands 15,000 soldiers, declared a "war of liberation" to expel Syria's estimated 33,000 troops.

In Beirut, security sources reported three hours of artillery duels Wednesday and said one of Aoun's men was killed.

Diplomats said Syria told the committee it would pull out of Lebanon only if it received firm guarantees from the United States that Israel would withdraw from its self-declared "security zone" in southern Lebanon.

Syria also wants constitutional and political reforms giving Muslims a bigger say in running Lebanon.

The rivalry led to a political crisis a year ago which left Lebanon with no president and two governments, one military, headed by Aoun, and one civilian, headed by Salim Al Hoss, vying for power.

The Arab League committee, set up in May, said at the end of July it was suspending its work because of insurmountable obstacles.

It decided to hold the Jeddah meeting after widespread appeals, sparked by intensified fighting and heavy casualties last month, that it resume its peace efforts.

Saudi Arabia's King Fahd said in Jeddah earlier this week: "We are determined, with God's will, to find a final solution to a tragedy which everyone agrees should come to an end."

"The committee has better chances of success this time because the warring factions are now convinced that there can be a military solution," an Arab diplomat in Riyadh said.

The Lebanese, however, are less optimistic about prospects for peace, having seen dozens of mediation efforts disappear in a blaze of cannon and rocket fire.

Informed sources in Jeddah said the committee was considering a four-stage peace plan comprising:

— A comprehensive ceasefire on all Lebanese territory.

— Lifting all land and naval blockades and opening Beirut airport.

— Inviting the members of parliament to a meeting outside Lebanon to agree to a "charter of political reform."

— A parliament meeting in Beirut "within a few weeks" for election of the president.

A high-level Arab body would be formed to monitor the ceasefire.

2nd Shipment Just Arrived:
HUSSEIN OF JORDAN
By James Lunt
At all bookshops - Price JD 12

Israeli troops battle masked Palestinian youths

By Nicolas B. Tatro
The Associated Press

GAZA CITY, Occupied Gaza Strip — For Israeli soldiers, the Palestinian uprising is no longer a battle against large riots, but a matter of stalking groups of masked Palestinian youths armed with knives, pipes and firebombs.

Palestinian youths have banded together to enforce PLO strike calls, distribute leaflets, attack soldiers and kill Arab collaborators. Some have taken imposing names: Striking Arms, Intervention Forces, Black Panthers, the Liberators, Popular Army Brigades, Lightning Forces.

They often operate at night after the army-imposed curfew begins. Some wear khaki uniforms and carry handbags.

"The character of the uprising has changed. Instead of mass demonstrations, there is tension and isolated events in which fewer and fewer people taking part," Maj.-Gen. Matan Vilnai, the Gaza commander, told the daily Maariv recently.

The army's response to the phenomenon has been to allow soldiers freer use of their weapons against masked suspects. But some soldiers complain the orders are confusing, and critics say there is a trend toward shooting first and asking questions later.

The soldiers call the masked men "raoulin," abbreviated Hebrew for "the covered faces," because most wear their heads in red- or black-checked keffiyehs.

"If they put on masks, it means they want to hurt us. They have either knives or firebombs, and we must protect ourselves. It's self-defence, a question of life," reserve Capt. Zaroka, 34, said as his jeep whizzed around a corner onto Palestine Street.

Zaroka, a computer software expert who gave only his first name in keeping with army regulations, was on patrol with a vice president of fertilizer company, a peccan farmer, a shopkeeper and an insurance claims adjuster.

All in their late 30s, the reservists fought together in the 1973 Middle East war and the Lebanon invasion. Now they were serving their fourth tour here since the December 1987 start of the intifada, or Palestinian uprising against Israeli occupation.

Because of their experience, the troops see themselves as less likely than young conscripts to get rattled and open fire without reason.

Yaron, 36, who owns an auto-parts store, said he would not use his weapon to shoot at children who throw stones or burned tyres. But he would use it as a last resort against the masked activists.

"If they want to play around and try to kill me, well, I will kill them," he said.

There are increasing reports from other reservists returning from duty in the occupied territories that restrictions on opening fire are often ignored by commanders in the field.

Elisha Shapira, a reserve lieutenant colonel and head of the Socialist Kibbutz Artzi collective farm movement, said on Israel TV he had seen such excesses during his own reserve tours and heard of others from the movement's members.

"The fact is that in the field, many irregular incidents are going on and soldiers are carrying out dozens and dozens of illegal orders," Shapira said.

"The army's high command is making great efforts to protect our society's norms, but to my sorrow we are seeing many deviations."

The army said 80 Israelis have been tried for breaching orders, with sentences ranging from suspended terms to 4½ years in jail.

Defence Minister Yitzhak Rabin recently eased firing restrictions as part of a stepped-up campaign against the masked youths. He allowed soldiers to use live ammunition instead of plastic bullets when opening fire on masked boys who refuse orders to halt.

Army spokesman said that in making arrests of masked activists, soldiers must show warnings and fire in the air before they are allowed to shoot at a fleeing suspect — first at the legs and then at the body.

A 30-year-old soldier who recently returned from a month of reserve duty in the Gaza Strip said many soldiers were confused about frequently changing and complex orders about when they were allowed to shoot. This led some to refrain from using their weapons altogether, while others felt encouraged to fire freely.

Israeli soldiers arrest Palestinian youth in the occupied territories

In practice, the reserve soldier said, speaking on condition of anonymity, the whole procedure of shooting, then firing, can take only a second or two, especially if the task is divided by four soldiers.

One top army officer, who showed a reporter a new 10-page pamphlet of rules recently issued to soldiers on opening fire, denied there had been an

MIDDLE EAST NEWS BRIEFS

Nigerians seek rescue from Lebanon

BEIRUT (R) — Frightened Nigerians appealed to their government Wednesday to rescue them from Lebanon's civil war. Six Africans, one a Nigerian, have already been killed and further delay could end with the government "evacuating dead bodies" a group of students wrote to Nigeria's president, General Ibrahim Babangida. "Day by day our conditions deteriorate from bad to worse," wrote the students, who said they spoke for 63 Nigerians in Lebanon. They said Lagos promised help last month but did nothing. Shelling has killed at least 800 people since March.

Iran upgrades ties with Kuwait

NICOSIA (R) — Iran upgraded relations with Kuwait to ambassadorial level Wednesday in its drive to improve relations with neighbouring states soured by the eight-year-long Gulf war against Iraq. The Iranian News Agency (IRNA), monitored in Nicosia, said career diplomat Hussein Sadeqi would become ambassador to Kuwait, replacing a charge d'affaires. Sadeqi had acted as the Foreign Ministry's director general for the Gulf states. During the Gulf war, Iran fired several missiles at Kuwaiti territory in a bid to force it to end financial support for Baghdad. Kuwait, and most Gulf states, supported Iraq in the war in which a ceasefire came into force last August. Iran's ties with Kuwait reached their lowest end in 1987 when Iranians angry at the killing of 402 people, mainly Iranian pilgrims in clashes with Saudi forces during the annual Muslim pilgrimage, attacked the Kuwaiti and Saudi Arabian embassies in Tehran, killing a Kuwaiti diplomat. Iran has embarked on a vigorous campaign to patch up differences with the Gulf states since the election in July of President Ali Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani. As part of this policy, Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati, long considered a dove in Iranian politics, met leaders of Kuwait, Bahrain and Qatar during a Non-Aligned conference in Belgrade last week to emphasise Iran's desire for cordial ties.

Algerian Communist Party legalised

ALGIERS (R) — Algeria has legalised the Communist Party, banned since 1962, in a further step towards multi-party democracy, the state-run newspaper Al Messa has said. It said the Vanguard Socialist Party, the successor to the Communist Party, was given legal status by the Interior Ministry on Sept. 10 after applying last month. A party leader contacted by Reuters said the report was tantamount to an official announcement by the ministry. Known by its French initials PAFS, the party was formed underground in 1966 by left-wing FLN dissidents and former members of the Algerian Communist Party, which was banned a few months after independence. Since July Algeria has allowed parties opposed to the ruling National Liberation Front (FLN) to apply for legal status for the first time since the country became independent in 1962.

France to discuss loan row with Iran

PARIS (R) — A senior French diplomat will visit Tehran next week to discuss Iran's demand for full repayment of a one-billion-dollar loan made by the late shah, government sources have said. They confirmed a report in the satirical and political weekly Le Canard Enchaîné that the mission would be carried out by Francois Scherer, France's Middle East envoy. The Foreign Ministry declined to comment. Iran has said the improvement of relations between the two countries would depend on settling the dispute. France and Iran have recently resumed ties, which were severed for 11 months between 1987 and 1988 in a dispute over French allegations that Iran's Paris embassy helped terrorists. Iran says that, with interest, the 1974 loan would be worth $2 billion. France has repaid $630 million in two instalments since 1986. But Paris wants the Iranians to pay compensation to a French firm for breaking a contract to buy uranium.

Velayati starts talks in Malaysia

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Visiting Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati told Malaysian Foreign Minister Abul Hassan Omar that Iran wants to see a narrowing of the trade gap between the two countries which was now in Malaysia's favour. The Deputy Secretary General of the Malaysian Foreign Ministry Abdul Majid Mohammad told reporters that Velayati made the call during talks the two foreign ministers and their officials held at the Foreign Ministry Tuesday, the first day of a two-day visit by Velayati. Abdul Majid, who attended the talks, said Velayati suggested Malaysia buy more Iranian goods as part of the process to narrow the gap. Iran currently imports about 20 million worth of Malaysian products, mainly commodities such as natural rubber, palm oil and timber annually. But Malaysia's imports from Iran, mainly foodstuffs and crude oil, have so far been negligible and below $1 million a year. Abul Hassan explained to the Iranians that Malaysia practised a free-enterprise system and it was up to the Iranian to come and market its products to the Malaysian private sector, Abdul Majid said.

'Awareness day' to honor hostages

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is being asked to designate U.S. journalist Terry Anderson's birthday next month as a national day of prayer for the eight U.S. citizens held hostage in Lebanon. U.S. Congressman Paul Henry, a Republican, introduced a joint resolution to mark Oct. 27 as National Hostage Awareness Day. The resolution says church bells should be rung for one minute at noon that day. Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent for the Associated Press, was kidnapped March 16, 1985, and has been held the longest of any of the eight U.S. citizens still believed to be alive. Anderson will be 42 on Oct. 27. "It's an exercise in conscience for the American people, so we can say we did what we could," Henry said at a news conference.

A man's dream revives a nation's culture

By Nelly Lama

Special to the Jordan Times

AMMAN — A Greek philosopher once said "find a dreamer and build great cities, a nation." Jordan has found its man! He has with him dreams of reviving the past dreams of bringing back to everyone's mind, memories of yesterday. "Our" man is Munir Nassar, a travel agent, who sought to revive local tourism making the furthest corner of the Jordanian desert accessible to local and foreign tourists alike. We hear of desert safaris in four-wheel drives, and what could require more imagination than dining in the middle of the desert, in the ruins of a deserted castle, being catered for by the Marjoun? Or go on a train ride and attend Bedouin raids, or take a train-ride in the original steam locomotives, the youngest dating back to 1954 (four are still running) and have a light meal with piano entertainment in the renovated "Al Jiza" station of the Hijaz railroad which was initially designed and built by a German engineer in the first half of the century and later used in the film of Lawrence of Arabia. This Nassar has done and more. "My idea is not to just renovate old sites but rather to turn them into something useful," he explains.

His greatest achievement yet, could only take place with the help of an old Jordanian family, with roots in the country, and with an estate, a building complex, that stands high on a hill in the Yabrud, changing faces with the coming and going of the various civilisations that inhabited it. This was the abode of the Abu Jaber family for many generations. Respected by nearby Bedouin tribes they thrived in their farming and plantations. Some moved to the city and returned to spend the summer, while others built mansions nearby. "The original family home was deemed unsafe after the 1927 earthquake and was raked to ground-floor level," explains Yazid Abu Jaber, former resident, whose family now lives in mansions down the hill, with vast olive groves all around them. "This whole complex was left for the horses and for fodder reserves. In fact, one can notice holes in the vaults through which camel caravans, standing on the roof, would dump the fodder. The way it looks now, Saleh Abu Jaber would have appreciated it if he could see it now." Saleh is the great grandfather who was so determined and shrewd as to build this huge complex for his children. "When we were children," Yazid continues, "we did not appreciate it. Now we are more aware of its worth. Many people have approached us to use it towards commercial ends, they promised us a lot of money but we refused. Finally we found someone to appreciate it and do something worthwhile with it."

The restaurant

The Abu Jaber complex has, in fact, had a facelift that has unearthed ancient buildings that witness to its earliest past, its paths were uncovered to show the old cobbled road, the gesso removed from its walls and vaulted ceilings to expose the rough stonework used in the building of this little "village." A new name was given to it "Kan Zaman" translated as "Once upon a time, there was...," referring to all the old artifacts and waning trades that seem to acquire new life in there. Yes, Kan Zaman is bustling with activity now, presenting to the Jordanian people as well as to foreigners, an image of all the traditional wares that our grandfathers used to use. It is a place where one could feel melancholic and yearn for the past, but where the atmosphere of feasting and rejoicing, the old-fashioned way, ends in a traditional meal more like Arab "home-cooking," with live entertainment, be it dances such as "Dabkeh," the fishermen's return, the harvest, varieties like comic skits, the reenactment of a village wedding, or a recital on the "Oud, Rababa (bedouin string instrument), or Shabbabeh (reed flute). The restaurant is located in a vast vaulted area that has maintained its original character in spite of the renovations. Its acoustics are stunning, since the sound hits the circular vaults, and rebounds, creating a natural amplifier. An Arabian-style seating area with colourful pillows opens up the space to a large, circular, hooded fireplace serving as a food-warmer. Beside it we recognise the good old "Namieh" our traditional pantry. Of course, like most things here, it is an original one. A waiter comes swinging about a tray, carrying filled glasses, it could make you jump, but the glasses don't fall, the three poles that lead the brass tray to the waiter's hand are studied to gain momentum as they swing. An astounding feat that one remembers from his childhood days with a smile! Waiters wear the traditional Umbaz and Kiber (a long overdress whose seams are propped up to the waist), their Hafta wound around their heads in the manner of fieldworkers. They offer free drinks that are both traditional and exotic, especially in their presentation within colourful, original containers. Saus (Licorice), Tamarind, Carob, Almond drink, all what our grandfathers drank, and in the same way. One Large glass container has a siphoning device which, when raised with the finger pressing on the knob, retains the liquid; once the finger lets go, the liquid is released from below into the glass. This ancient container is called "Atramiz-Shaft". One more item among these heart-warming artifacts is the sweet-trolley, which is no other than the carriage of the Halawani (Street sweets-vendor) with straw disks that carry typical Arab sweets such as Hariseh, Sahlab, etc. The restaurant area can house 400 guests but only 154 will be admitted to leave space for the entertainment and rejoicing. All chairs and ceiling beams are made from antiquated hardwood recuperated from the site of the old railway. "It has broken many a saw the workmen exclaim."

Talking of workmen, this is one site where the heart is bound to the hand. They seem to feel and understand that what they are doing is important, after all, they are bringing back the good old days! A painter, Ali, wrote a poem about "Kan Zaman" that was so charming in its simplicity that it now lies on every tablemat. Yes, everyone gets a chance here, with no reservations.

Outside the restaurant, flanking the cobbled street is a genuine old style Souk with craftsmen practicing their ancient trades; many of whom are in their seventies. Among others Abu Ibrahim, the guardian, who was born on the site over seventy years ago, stands with his thin bedouin gait and sun-baked skin and holds on to his responsibilities. Hearing the motors run the first day, he feared monsters and put out the electricity. That is how authentic this place is.

Al-Attar

The Bakers, two other septuagenarians, bake their bread on pebbles heated by burnt wood in an old fashioned furnace at "Al Taboun." Next stands the shop of "Al-Attar" who sells spices, herbs, Arabic medicines etc. The traditional Attar is known to make his own mixes, and so he does. A craft area follows called "Hirafium" in which one finds a sculptor carving olive wood in "Al-Zaitounah", a man working at copper repousse, another making saddles. The Society for the Protection of the Family also exhibits its embroidered wares in a stall called "Okaz" an artist paints while works depicting the Jordanian scene by George and Jack Kaplanian and Diana Shamouni are exhibited. The area retains its antique elements, reads cover the ceiling (invisibly topped with cement overlay to protect from rain), old beams, an original roughly-tiled floor, etc. attach these crafts to a long-lived tradition. Before you arrive to "Bridal Chest" and area where the Bani Hamida rugs, and other Save the Children artifacts (quilts, embroidered baggages, etc.) are exhibited, and the vast room across the road in which an original old Bani Hamida weaver will work on her long and primitive loom, you will encounter in the middle of the street, two old Sirikashian carts, the first wheeled vehicles in the kingdom, reconstructed by an old Turkish Sirikashian. A third was found, and is being reconstructed. An old wooden plough like those used with a bull and yoke lies around. Short piers and columns, found in situ, also stand there. A short way above, stands the children's theatre, held by Margaret Maladjarian, for even children can have their share of happiness here. To top up the atmosphere, colourful horse-driven carriages, reverberes and all, offer you free rides around the area. Looking around at the entrance of this Souk, one finds different architectural structures juxtaposed upon each other, telling the tale of passing years. Around a square entrance, for example, one can detect an old keel arch; while above geometric, probably Byzantine boulders stand small irregular stones.

A wooden staircase leads you below to an open air "old-fashioned" cafe with straw stools better known as "coffee-chairs". An old photographer, "above seventy", stands with an antique hooded camera-on-stand, taking photographs of passers-by. A glass kiln supercedes "Al-Khalil", a shape of blown glass; Al-Khalil referring to Hebron from where this craft derives its origin. "Al Mukhtar" is a workshop where they transfer traditional oil lamps into electric ceiling or side lamps. Finally "Al Salsal", a pottery run by two renowned Jordanian potters Rula Ghandour and Hazem Zu'bi, stands with its traditional Arab pottery wares decorated with script that conveys wishes of good health and "bon appetit". These wares are used in the restaurant and could be done to order. An extra wheel allows the visitor to try his hand at pottery.

Outside this lower souk, under the climbing plants, in a traditional Arab setting, one can look out across the hills and see the surrounding mountains, bedecked with trees, witnesses of a determined generation, who, in spite of all odds managed to incorporate within its livelihood, lots of charming moments, very much in the fashion that you experience today in "Kan Zaman". With modern facilities and all, it holds the last vestiges of an ethnic culture that has been left behind for more Western stuff.

JORDAN TELEVISION
Tel: 773111-19
PROGRAMME ONE
15:30	Koran
15:45	Programme review
15:55	Children programme
16:00	Hil Squad
16:05	News for the Deaf
16:10	Religious programme
16:15	Health programme
16:20	Programme review
16:25	News in Arabic
16:30	Local series
16:35	Programme review
16:40	Local programme
16:45	News in Arabic
16:50	Arabic film
PROGRAMME TWO
17:30	Champs Elysees
17:40	News in French
17:45	Documentary
17:50	News in Hebrew
17:55	Varieties
18:00	News in Arabic
18:05	Bill Cosby Show
18:10	Max Headroom
18:15	News in English
18:20	Feature film: "A Small Killing"
PRAYER TIMES
06:55	Fajr
07:14	(Sunrise) Duha
12:31	Dhuhr
16:03	'Asr
18:47	Maghreb
18:49	Isha
CHURCHES
St. Mary of Nazareth Church Swedieh Tel. 810740
Assembly of God Church, Tel. 632755
St. Joseph Church Tel. 624590
Church of the Annunciation Tel. 637440
De la Salle Church Tel. 661757
Terranova Church Tel. 623566

WEATHER
Bulletin supplied by the Department of Meteorology.
It will be fair and partly cloudy. Winds will be predominantly moderate to fresh causing dust in the eastern and southern parts of the country. In Amman, it will be dusty with northerly moderate wind and calm sea.
Amman	Min./max. temp. 16/28
Aqaba	21/35
Deir	17/32
Jordan Valley	23/34
Yesterday's high temperatures: Amman 30, Aqaba 37. Humidity readings: Amman 34 per cent, Aqaba 35 per cent.
USEFUL TELEPHONE NUMBERS
NIGHT DUTY
AMMAN:
Dr. Adnan Al Disi	826660
Dr. Tayyar Khadr	606857
Dr. Bassim Al Qaddoumi	640224
Dr. Suleiman Al Khayyat	891880
Firas pharmacy	661912
Firdaus pharmacy	778336

JORDAN TIMES DAILY GUIDE AND CALENDAR
Church of the Annunciation Tel. 623541
Anglican Church Tel. 623583, Tel. 628543
Armenian Catholic Church Tel. 771331
Armenian Orthodox Church Tel. 775261
St. Ephraim Church Tel. 771751
International Church Tel. 685326
Evangelical Lutheran Church Tel. 811295
The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints Tel. 815817, 821264
WEATHER
Bulletin supplied by the Department of Meteorology.
It will be fair and partly cloudy. Winds will be predominantly moderate to fresh causing dust in the eastern and southern parts of the country. In Amman, it will be dusty with northerly moderate wind and calm sea.
Amman	Min./max. temp. 16/28
Aqaba	21/35
Deir	17/32
Jordan Valley	23/34
Yesterday's high temperatures: Amman 30, Aqaba 37. Humidity readings: Amman 34 per cent, Aqaba 35 per cent.
USEFUL TELEPHONE NUMBERS
NIGHT DUTY
AMMAN:
Dr. Adnan Al Disi	826660
Dr. Tayyar Khadr	606857
Dr. Bassim Al Qaddoumi	640224
Dr. Suleiman Al Khayyat	891880
Firas pharmacy	661912
Firdaus pharmacy	778336
Church of the Annunciation Tel. 623541
Anglican Church Tel. 623583, Tel. 628543
Armenian Catholic Church Tel. 771331
Armenian Orthodox Church Tel. 775261
St. Ephraim Church Tel. 771751
International Church Tel. 685326
Evangelical Lutheran Church Tel. 811295
The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints Tel. 815817, 821264
WEATHER
Bulletin supplied by the Department of Meteorology.
It will be fair and partly cloudy. Winds will be predominantly moderate to fresh causing dust in the eastern and southern parts of the country. In Amman, it will be dusty with northerly moderate wind and calm sea.
Amman	Min./max. temp. 16/28
Aqaba	21/35
Deir	17/32
Jordan Valley	23/34
Yesterday's high temperatures: Amman 30, Aqaba 37. Humidity readings: Amman 34 per cent, Aqaba 35 per cent.
USEFUL TELEPHONE NUMBERS
NIGHT DUTY
AMMAN:
Dr. Adnan Al Disi	826660
Dr. Tayyar Khadr	606857
Dr. Bassim Al Qaddoumi	640224
Dr. Suleiman Al Khayyat	891880
Firas pharmacy	661912
Firdaus pharmacy	778336

JORDAN TIMES DAILY GUIDE AND CALENDAR
Church of the Annunciation Tel. 623541
Anglican Church Tel. 623583, Tel. 628543
Armenian Catholic Church Tel. 771331
Armenian Orthodox Church Tel. 775261
St. Ephraim Church Tel. 771751
International Church Tel. 685326
Evangelical Lutheran Church Tel. 811295
The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints Tel. 815817, 821264
WEATHER
Bulletin supplied by the Department of Meteorology.
It will be fair and partly cloudy. Winds will be predominantly moderate to fresh causing dust in the eastern and southern parts of the country. In Amman, it will be dusty with northerly moderate wind and calm sea.
Amman	Min./max. temp. 16/28
Aqaba	21/35
Deir	17/32
Jordan Valley	23/34
Yesterday's high temperatures: Amman 30, Aqaba 37. Humidity readings: Amman 34 per cent, Aqaba 35 per cent.
USEFUL TELEPHONE NUMBERS
NIGHT DUTY
AMMAN:
Dr. Adnan Al Disi	826660
Dr. Tayyar Khadr	606857
Dr. Bassim Al Qaddoumi	640224
Dr. Suleiman Al Khayyat	891880
Firas pharmacy	661912
Firdaus pharmacy	778336

JORDAN TIMES DAILY GUIDE AND CALENDAR
Church of the Annunciation Tel. 623541
Anglican Church Tel. 623583, Tel. 628543
Armenian Catholic Church Tel. 771331
Armenian Orthodox Church Tel. 775261
St. Ephraim Church Tel. 771751
International Church Tel. 685326
Evangelical Lutheran Church Tel. 811295
The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints Tel. 815817, 821264
WEATHER
Bulletin supplied by the Department of Meteorology.
It will be fair and partly cloudy. Winds will be predominantly moderate to fresh causing dust in the eastern and southern parts of the country. In Amman, it will be dusty with northerly moderate wind and calm sea.
Amman	Min./max. temp. 16/28
Aqaba	21/35
Deir	17/32
Jordan Valley	23/34
Yesterday's high temperatures: Amman 30, Aqaba 37. Humidity readings: Amman 34 per cent, Aqaba 35 per cent.
USEFUL TELEPHONE NUMBERS
NIGHT DUTY
AMMAN:
Dr. Adnan Al Disi	826660
Dr. Tayyar Khadr	606857
Dr. Bassim Al Qaddoumi	640224
Dr. Suleiman Al Khayyat	891880
Firas pharmacy	661912
Firdaus pharmacy	778336

22:15	Jeddah (RJ)	Sweet Melon	270 / 260
22:30	Emilia Lumpur, Singapore (R)	Squash	400 / 350
		Tomatoes	140 / 180
		Water Melon	200 / 130

09:40	Damascus, Paris (AF)
10:15	Tunis (TU)
10:30	Riyadh (add.), (SV)
11:10	Frankfurt (LX)
12:40	Jerusalem (KS)
12:10	Kuwait (KJ)
14:05	Cairo (MS)
15:30	Bahrain, Muscat (GP)
16:10	Kuwait (KJ)
16:40	Beirut (LA)
17:15	Bucharest (RO)
18:40	Riyadh (SV)
19:15	Dubai (EK)

MARKET PRICES
Upper/lower price in fils per kg.
Apple (golden)	500 / 450
Apple (red)	560 / 500
Banana	400 / 350
Banana (Mukdaman)	350 / 300
Beet	360 / 300
Carrot	350 / 300
Cabbage	130 / 100
Cauliflower	230 / 200
Corn	260 / 220
Cucumbers (large)	200 / 150
Cucumbers (small)	350 / 300
Eggplant	200 / 150
Fig	400 / 350
Garden	550 / 800
Grape	350 / 300
Grapes (red)	300 / 250
Gruva	400 / 350
Lemon (yellow)	280 / 250
Lemon (green)	240 / 170
Melon	90 / 60
Murrow (large)	200 / 150
Marrow (small)	420 / 350
Onion	600 / 500
Onion (dry)	250 / 200
Pepper (hot)	160 / 120
Pepper (sweet)	160 / 120
Potatoes	400 / 350
Potato	430 / 380
Radish	120 / 90

FOR FRIDAY
Tel. 77311-19
PROGRAMME ONE
10:15	Children program
12:00	Religious programme
12:30	Friday's prayer
13:10	Religious programme
13:20	Sports programme
14:50	Religious seminar
16:00	Feature film
18:00	Message from Oman
18:10	Local programme
19:25	Local programme
19:40	Programme review
20:00	News in Arabic
20:20	Local programme
21:40	News in Arabic
22:30	Local programme
23:40	News summary in Arabic
23:10	Programme contin.
PROGRAMME TWO
17:15	French play
19:40	News in French
19:15	Annoyed? Hat on France
19:30	News in Hebrew
20:00	News in Arabic
20:30	Quintess World Record
21:50	Address by
22:40	News in English
23:10	Chiefs
23:10	Therese's Company
PRAYER TIMES
04:56	Fajr
06:14	(Sunrise) Duha
12:31	Dhuhr
16:42	'Asr
18:02	Maghrib
20:06	Isha

Al Hussein appoints new PSD chief

AMMAN (Petra, J.T.) — His Majesty King Hussein Wednesday appointed Major General Fadel Al Fahed as director general of the Public Security Department (PSD), succeeding Lt.-Gen. Abdul Hadi Al Majali who resigned Tuesday to retire.

A Royal Decree issued here said that Maj.-Gen. Fahed will assume his duty as PSD chief as of Sept. 21, 1989 when Majali's retirement takes effect.

At the same time, King Hussein sent a letter to Majali expressing his deep appreciation for his efforts during his mandate as PSD chief which began on July 1, 1985.

"Your choice to take up the duty of PSD chief was based on your knowledge of your high level efficiency and your ability to introduce organization and your readiness to offer sacrifice and dedication," the King said in his message to Majali.

King Hussein said that Majali

Maj.-Gen. Fadel Al Fahed and his colleagues at the PSD "had succeeded in carrying out programmes in training and in acquiring modern equipment which together helped the police forces to attain a great level of readiness that won our confidence and our pride."

The King said he was confident that the PSD will now pursue the course of development and offer the best services to the Jordanian people.

Before becoming PSD chief, Majali had served as Jordanian ambassador to the United States and as a senior army officer. His successor to the post is a senior army officer and commander of the 15th Royal Armoured Division.

KING IN MAAN: His Majesty King Hussein waves to cheering crowds in the southern city of Maan during a visit he paid to the city Wednesday (Petra photo)

KING HONOURS ENVOYS: His Majesty King Hussein has conferred the Jordanian Independence Medal of the First Order on Algerian Ambassador Mohammed Bergham and Belgian Ambassador Guido Van den Broek upon the end of their tour of duty in the Kingdom. Foreign Ministry Secretary General Mutassim Bilbisi presented the medals to Bergham and Van den Broek (photo above) at an official lunch he hosted at Amman Plaza Hotel. Bilbisi also presented Swiss Ambassador to Jordan Harald Borer with a token gift. Borer is ending his tour of duty here by the end of this month.

Seminar reviews study on joint Jordanian-Syrian pesticide plant

DAMASCUS (J.T.) — A seminar has opened here to review a feasibility study on a joint Jordanian-Syrian pesticide plant to be set up in Syria to meet the needs of the two countries and export the surplus to the Arab World.

Minister of Industry and Trade Ziyad Innab and his Syrian counterpart Antoine Jubran are among a group of Syrian and Jordanian ministers and officials taking part in the seminar along with a representative of the Arab Organisation for Industrial Development (AOID) which is co-sponsoring the project.

The seminar, according to Syrian officials, will pave the way also for an expanded meeting later on to decide on marketing and organisational matters.

The pesticide project is being carried out by the joint Jordanian-Syrian Industry Company which is also carrying out a number of joint industrial schemes.

Innab told the opening session that the joint industry company has already established two plants, one for processing white cement in Jordan and the other for producing wall to wall carpeting in Sweida, Syria.

"The two projects are progressing satisfactorily despite the difficulties, and their products are meeting the needs of Syrian and Jordanian markets," the minister noted.

Referring to the pesticide project, Innab said that its products have a very good chance to be marketed in the Arab World which annually consumes some $332 million worth of pesticides.

Innab pledged full Jordanian support for the project and expressed hope that organisations invited to the seminar would extend support and assistance.

The Syrian ministers of economy and foreign trade and industry also addressed the seminar's opening session paying tribute to the on-going process of integration between Jordan and Syria in economic affairs.

They said that the pesticide plant will have an overall production capacity of 4,296 tonnes annually to be mostly marketed in Jordan and Syria.

The pesticide company, they said, will be set up in implementation of the joint Jordanian-Syrian Higher Committee Resolutions taken in July 1988.

Last October, a general financiers meeting was held in Amman to raise funds for the project and to enlist support from various investment and financial organisations of the scheme.

According to Ahmad Munk Hamash, the joint company board chairman, nearly 60 per cent of the plant's total production will be marketed in Jordan and Syria and the rest will find its way to neighbouring Arab states.

Hamash expected the projected plant to produce some 4,000 tonnes of pesticides annually.

He said that pesticides can be of use mainly in agriculture but will also be used for eliminating insects and protecting public health.

Innab, who is in Damascus to take part in the AOID meetings, earlier co-chaired a joint Jordanian-Syrian Higher Committee meeting with Dr. Mohammad Inadi, the Syrian minister of economy and foreign trade, to review scopes of cooperation between the two countries, covered by the minutes of the higher committee which convened in Damascus last July.

Innab said later that a review was made of bilateral cooperation in industry, agriculture, transport, electricity and oil, as well as economic and trade and financial matters and banking arrangements to settle even-handed trade deals.

Jordan, N. Yemen sign programme to implement cultural agreement energy and social affairs.

AMMAN (Petra) — Jordan and North Yemen Wednesday signed an executive programme for the implementation of a cultural and educational agreement from 1989 to 1991.

The programme provides for exchanges of scholarships, direct contacts between universities in Jordan and North Yemen, training Yemeni personnel at Jordanian universities, exchange of visits by university teachers and professors, joint seminars, exchanges of documents manuscripts and other cultural material and school textbooks.

The programme also provides for Jordanian teachers to be employed in Yemeni schools on a secondment basis, cooperation in conducting restoration of archaeological sites, exchanges of historic books and other materials, organising exhibitions and exchange of visits by youth and sports delegations.

Under the programme's provisions, the two sides pledge to cooperate in matters related to social affairs, care for the juveniles, rehabilitation of the handicapped, providing health and primary health care and cooperation in energy, geology and other related fields.

RSS, W. German institute sign cooperation agreement

AMMAN (J.T.) — The Royal Scientific Society (RSS) Economic Research Centre and the West German Friedrich-Ebert-Stiftung (FES) research institute Wednesday signed a cooperation agreement for a research study entitled: "Socio-economic development, management and administration of rural areas in Jordan."

According to the agreement, the RSS Economic Research Centre will conduct a field study on rural development and administration in Jordan. It includes a study of infrastructure projects as well as social and economic services in Jordan's rural areas and the current administrative methods.

Furthermore, the study discusses productive projects likely to be carried out and the most ideal administrative organisation that can be adopted in rural areas and development centres.

This study is designed to prepare practical recommendations to establish various projects of social and economic dimensions and to propose executive measures that ensure success for such projects.

The study will be concluded in a period of time not exceeding eight months, during which all information and studies on this subject will be collected.

After completion of the research project, a workshop will be organised, by the RSS and sponsored by FES, to conduct discussions with experts and to disseminate the findings

NATIONAL NEWS IN BRIEF

MALHAS OPENS MEDICAL MEETING: Health Minister Zubair Malhas Wednesday opened the 12th meeting of the Arab Council for internal medicine which is organised by the Arab Council for Medical Specialisations and called in a speech for further efforts to raise funds necessary for the council's operations. The minister also paid tribute to Palestinian doctors and specialists who are providing urgent medical help to the victims of Israeli repression in the occupied Arab territories. Malhas lauded recommendations taken by the Council of Arab Medical Specialisations in Libya which gave recognition to the hospitals of the occupied Arab territories. (Petra)

NABULSI TO ATTEND TUNIS MEETING: Central Bank of Jordan Governor Dr. Mohammad Sa'id Nabulsi will represent Jordan to the meetings of the Arab central bank governors due to open in Tunis Friday. The two-day meetings will discuss organisation of Arab economic ties with the European Community and review the final draft of the unified Arab economic report for 1989 due to be presented to the upcoming meeting of the International Monetary Fund in Washington. (Petra)

KEILANI RECEIVES IRAQI ENVOY: Minister of Water and Irrigation Mohammad Saleh Keilani Wednesday discussed with the Iraqi Ambassador to Jordan means to bolster and develop bilateral relations in the field of water and irrigation. (Petra)

POLICE GRADUATION: The Royal Police Academy Wednesday turned out four groups of police officers who completed training courses in different types of police work. Academy dean Mohammad Bassoul delivered a speech at the graduation ceremony and later distributed diplomas to the graduates. (Petra)

ARAB VETS TO MEET IN BAGHDAD: The Jordanian Veterinarians Association announced Wednesday that it will take part in a seminar organised by the Arab Veterinarian Federation in Baghdad Friday. Association President Ahmad Ajlouni said that he will represent the association at the meeting which will review a number of working papers from Arab states. (Petra)

HOUSING BANK MEETING: The Housing Bank is holding a meeting Thursday for its regional management in charge of branches in southern Jordan. The two-day meeting is being held at the Ma'in Spa near Madaba. (Petra)

WHAT'S GOING ON

The following listings are compiled from monthly bulletins and the daily Arabic press. Readers are advised to verify the listed time and place with the concerned institutions.

EXHIBITIONS

★ An art exhibition by Jordanian artists Khalid Ghawamneh and Abdullah Kameleh, and the Syrian artist Wasim Al Masri at the Housing Bank Art Gallery.

FILM

★ A feature film entitled "The Grapes of Wrath" at the American Centre — 7:00 p.m.

PETRA CULTURAL FESTIVAL

EXHIBITIONS

- ★ Handicrafts exhibition, which includes sculptures, embroidery, sand ornaments and woodwork, at the Tourism Square.
- ★ The National Heritage Exhibition, which includes knitwear, textiles and simple agricultural tools used locally, at the Tourism Square.
- ★ The Archaeological Treasures of the Sahara Exhibition inside the old city of Petra.
- ★ A photo exhibition on Petra inside the old city of Petra.
- ★ The Armed Forces Exhibition, including photos and posters depicting the armed forces development.
- ★ A comprehensive art exhibition, held by the University of Jordan, includes paintings, photos and sculptures at the Visitors Centre.
- ★ An exhibition of oriental artifacts and folkloric costumes at the Tourism Square.

SPORTS

★ Petra cross-country race — 3:30 p.m.

LECTURE

- ★ A lecture by Japanese Ambassador to Jordan Mahoto Watanabe, organised by the Young Women's Christian Association (YWCA), on a programme entitled "traditional Japan, modern Japan and tomorrow" at the YWCA — 7:00 p.m.
- ★ A lecture on cultural movement in Jordan by Dr. Khalid Al Kowari — 4:30 p.m.

FOLKLORE

- ★ Folkloric shows by Al Madraq Young Women's Centre Troupe, Karak Young Women's Troupe, Jordanian Artist Mohammad Al Haili and Yarmouk University Orchestra at Al Hareth Theatre — 8:30 p.m.

Ministry of Justice completes work on new arbitration law

AMMAN (Petra) — The Justice Ministry announced Wednesday it has completed work on a new arbitration law and sent it to the cabinet to be endorsed before it can be put into force.

The draft law was prepared by the ministry upon directives from Prime Minister Sharif Zaid Ibn Shaker so that Jordan will have a new set of regulations to cope with the developments in trade, industry and the contracting business, to replace the existing law which came into force 37 years ago, according to a Justice Ministry statement.

The statement said that the ministry enlisted the assistance of the Jordanian Engineers and Contractors Associations, the Amman Chambers of Industry and Trade and Jordanian lawyers as well as university professors and other people and organisations with wide-ranging experience in arbitration procedures at the regional and international levels, in order to help enact the new law.

The new law on arbitration is bound to complement the work of courts in many cases and is bound to cut down on lengthy procedures in the course of court proceedings, the statement added.

From now on arbitration committee comprising experts in trade, industry and the contracting business will be held to discuss cases and issue their decisions will be endorsed by Jordanian courts, the statement pointed out.

The new law aims to reduce the number of cases referred to the courts, especially as they deal with matters of finance and trade, requiring high level expertise and specialisation which can only be provided through the arbitration committee, the statement added.

In addition, the statement said, the Ministry of Justice has finalised a draft law on amendment on the axial weights on roads which will be referred to the cabinet for approval.

It said that Jordanian courts will, from now on, look into cases involving axial weight issues.

AMO to establish federation of agricultural exporters to Europe

AMMAN (Petra) — The Agricultural Marketing Organisation (AMO) is currently preparing for the establishment of a Jordanian federation of agricultural exporters to European countries, and has already issued a handbook to help exporters provide information about export prospects to Europe, according to the director of AMO's Quality Control Department Ibrahim Ureikat.

Ureikat said in the past six months there was a upsurge in the amounts of exported vegetables and fruit to European markets, thanks to the concerted efforts of the AMO staff and the Jordanian exporters.

According to Ureikat, AMO has prepared an integrated plan to promote methods for increasing exports. This plan entails imposing control on exporters who, he said, should apply standard specifications acceptable to the European markets.

The plan, which has been worked out in cooperation with the United States Agency for International Development (USAID), envisages dispatching officials and exporters on a tour of European markets to familiarise themselves with their needs of vegetables and fruits, Ureikat noted.

"At present, Jordan's efforts to vastly increase its crop exports to Europe are being hampered by the lack of sufficient proper transport facilities and the high cost of air freight," Ureikat noted.

He said that AMO has enlisted the help of a foreign specialist in crop export operations to study Jordan's land, maritime and air transport potentials and possible export operations.

In fact, Jordan turned to European and Gulf markets in 1985 when traditional markets for its products in Lebanon, Syria and Iraq were closed for Jordanian exporters, according to AMO Director General Faid Al Azab.

But despite the setbacks, he said, Jordan's agricultural exports in the past three years accounted for 35 per cent of the total exported national products, Azab noted.

The past decade witnessed a vast increase in the volume of national agricultural production, causing surpluses to surface and create bottlenecks in marketing.

He said that while Jordan had previously relied on Arab markets to sell its products, attention is now being shifted towards Europe. AMO, he said, has been paving the way for this development in cooperation with USAID by dispatching teams of exporters to European markets.

The teams visited France, the Netherlands and West Germany in May 1988 and had a close-hand study of their needs of products, Azab said.

Any development in ways and methods of exporting products and new markets abroad Azab concluded, are bound to help enhance the national economy and ensure more revenues of hard currency needed for development.

Kan Zaman A Place in Time

VILLAGE MARKET
TRADITIONAL CRAFTS
CAFE
RESTAURANT

OPENS FRIDAY SEPT. 15, 1989

open daily from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m.

Jordan Times

An independent Arab political daily published in English by the Jordan Press Foundation. Established 1973.

جوردان تايمز يومية عربية سياسية مستقلة تصدر بالانجليزية عن المؤسسة الصحفية الأردنية

Editorial Director:

RAKAN AL MAJALI

Director General:

DR. RADI AL WAQFI

Editor-in-Chief:

DR. WALEED M. SADI

Editorial and advertising offices:

Jordan Press Foundation,
University Road, P.O. Box 6710, Amman, Jordan.

Telephones: 667171-6, 670141-4, 684311, 684366

Telex: 21497 ALRAI JO

Facsimile: 661242

The Jordan Times is published daily except Fridays. Subscription and advertising rates are available from the Jordan Times Advertising Department.

In search for peace

MANY ATTEMPTS were made to by-pass the tripartite Arab committee entrusted to resolve the deteriorating Lebanese crisis and they were all in vain. Now all parties inside and outside Lebanon are rediscovering that the only viable hope is to give the Arab efforts a real chance to succeed. Much valuable time was wasted and untold killings, sufferings and destruction were also wickedly and criminally invested in the search for other ways to put an end to the conflict bleeding Lebanon. Fortunately, all sides have returned to their senses and now appear prepared to reactivate the Arab efforts.

But for the Arab efforts to triumph, it must solicit total Arab support on the basis of its initial findings. There is no more excuse to hide the facts and factors or even the circumstances that led the first Arab attempts into a dead end and street. The Arab capitals and the Arab peoples everywhere cannot be expected to pronounce themselves in no uncertain terms on the peace process in Lebanon without being told clearly about what went wrong in the first place with the dedicated efforts of the Higher Arab Committee established by the most recent Arab summit at Casablanca. Time is certainly ripe and propitious for direct and free exchange of information on the subject of Lebanon. The cards, all the cards, must now or never be put on the table for all sides, including the principle players to see.

The Arab World was promised the submission of an interim progress report from the Arab Committee on its activities. Such a report has yet to surface. It is just possible that the revelation of this report can put the future Arab efforts on a more secure and stable course. Any other way would only put the Arab effort, on which the entire international community now depends, into yet another vicious circle with no end in sight. Lebanon and the Lebanese deserve openness in the treatment of their decade-and-a-half tragedy and the Arab World must be prepared to offer it to them. This is the least that humanity can do for them.

Zaki - Al Ra'i
JORDAN PRESS EDITORIALS

Al Ra'i Arabic daily on Wednesday discussed the resumption of the Arab League tripartite committee's mission in Lebanon and said the fact that the meeting of the committee was taking place in Jeddah was a good omen for Lebanon. Saudi Arabia, said the paper, is placing its weight behind the committee, facilitating its work and helping it to achieve success in its endeavour to end the conflict in Lebanon. The committee which last July announced its failure to achieve a breakthrough, is now being assisted and backed in its efforts by Saudi Arabia and the Arab League member countries at large, and therefore, the only reminding issues here is the cooperation of the factions in Lebanon so that success can be achieved. Should the committee fail again, the door will be wide open for further tragedies and could threaten the security of the Arab Nation as a whole, the paper noted. The paper said that Arab masses are looking forward to a fruitful effort by the Arab League committee, now that it is working under new circumstances following the removal of all obstacles that stood in the way of its efforts in its previous attempts. The paper expressed hope that all parties involved in the Lebanese issue will now extend a helping hand to the committee to ensure its success.

A columnist in Al Ra'i Arabic daily on Wednesday criticised the Arab League for holding its sessions in secret without relying the outcome of these meetings to the Arab masses who are involved in a battle of destiny with the Israeli enemy. Mahmoud Al Rihawi says that whatever goes on inside the Arab League council should be published so that the Arab citizens can keep abreast with the discussions. The writer notes that the Arab League council has failed so far to follow up on a resolution taken by the Casablanca Arab summit on the formation of a higher committee to back the intifada at the international forums. There is no more talk about that committee or its work, nor is there any talk about the Arab stand with regard to Israel's idea of holding elections in the occupied territories, says the writer. He says that the council meeting is no less important than that of the Arab summits. We realise that the council plans to discuss the occupied territories, Lebanon, the Gulf and other issues, but there is no justification whatsoever for failing to follow up the implementation of Arab summit resolutions, says the writer. It is regrettable, he adds, that no serious steps have been taken so far to provide meaningful support for the Palestinian uprising which is designed to end occupation of Arab land.

Al Dustour daily discussed King Hussein's visit to the governorate of Maan Wednesday. It said that the city of Maan served as the first station where the leaders of the Great Arab Revolt stopped to gather their forces and pursue the march north. The King is making the visit as part of his round-the-country tours, which started some time ago, for the sake of meeting the local inhabitants and being close to them and to their lives, the paper noted. It said that the King has maintained an open channel of communication with his people and moving in the footsteps of his grandfather who served as one of the revolt's great leaders earlier this century. The city of Maan is Wednesday opening its arms to welcome the grandson of the founder of the Kingdom and a leader who is implementing the principles and the goals of the great revolt.

Israel and the occupied territories: Possible extrajudicial execution

The following is an Amnesty International report

AMNESTY INTERNATIONAL has called on the Israeli government to order a swift and impartial investigation into the killing of a 17-year-old Palestinian who it fears may have been the victim of an extrajudicial execution by the security forces.

In a telex sent to Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir on Aug. 1, Amnesty International expressed concern that Yasser Mohammad Abu Ghawsh appeared to have been shot and killed on July 10 when it might have been possible to arrest him without using lethal force and even though he did not appear to have been suspected of any life-endangering offence.

Amnesty International told Shamir that its information was that after the shooting the youth was not given medical attention by security forces, that a doctor was prevented from treating him on the spot and that he was not taken for emergency treatment to nearby medical facilities.

According to information received by Amnesty International, Yasser Abu Ghawsh was shot dead by Israeli security forces as he walked with friends along a crowded main road towards the central square of Ramallah, on the West Bank, late in the morning of July 10. The following sequence of events is alleged to have occurred:

A Volkswagen vehicle stopped near him and three men in civilian clothes got out. One of two others remaining in the vehicle put a blue light on its roof, identifying it as a security forces vehicle. Yasser Abu Ghawsh and his friends started to run in the direction of the central square, pursued by the three men, who drew pistols and fired in the air.

It is not clear whether they ordered Yasser Abu Ghawsh to stop either before or after opening fire, or whether he saw the blue light placed on top of the vehicle. Witnesses said they did not hear any verbal warning.

Yasser Abu Ghawsh and his friends turned into a side street pursued by the three men. One of the pursuers stopped as soon as he had turned the corner into this street, took aim with his pistol and fired several shots in rapid succession at Yasser Abu Ghawsh, who was running in the middle of the street.

The youth was hit in the head and the back by three or more bullets. An eye-witness says the shots were fired at a range of under 10 metres — a distance not exceeding the length of two cars parked alongside the road. Yasser Abu Ghawsh fell to the ground, approximately 20 metres into the side street. His friends ran away unhurt.

After the shooting, Yasser Abu Ghawsh's body was surrounded by his three pursuers and by soldiers who arrived quickly in two jeeps. A Palestinian doctor, whose office is nearby, came to give assistance. He identified himself as a doctor to the soldiers but they refused to let him approach the youth's body, which they loaded on to the floor of their jeep. However, the doctor pushed forward and managed to feel Yasser Abu Ghawsh's neck — he believes the youth was still alive then.

The jeep was then driven off in the direction of the military headquarters in Ramallah, according to eye-witnesses, while the three men in civilian clothes returned to their vehicle and drove away undisturbed.

Yasser Abu Ghawsh is said to have been taken to the military headquarters and kept there for over three hours before an ambulance came for him. He is believed to have died before it arrived. An autopsy was reportedly carried out before the youth was buried at dawn on July 12.

Yasser Abu Ghawsh is said to have been wanted for arrest by the Israeli authorities and to have recently escaped two attacks by soldiers and plainclothes men on July 2 and 6, during which firearms appear to have been used against him. He had apparently been involved in a demonstration in Ramallah on the morning when he was killed. Press reports in the following days quoted Israeli military sources as saying that Yasser Abu Ghawsh was killed by security forces after ignoring an order to stop and that he had been involved in "harassing" Palestinians suspected of collaborating with Israeli security forces.

Amnesty International has called for a speedy and impartial investigation into this incident, and for the findings and methods to be made public without delay. The organisation said that where there was suspicion of unlawful killing by members of the security forces, those involved should be suspended from active duty while the investigation proceeds. Anybody found responsible for such killing should be brought to justice.

Since the beginning of the Palestinian intifada in December

1987, Amnesty International has repeatedly voiced concern about a pattern of killings of Palestinian civilians by Israeli forces in which there appears to have been unjustifiable use of lethal force, condoned if not encouraged by the Israeli authorities.

Prisoners in need of immediate medical care

AMNESTY International is concerned at reports that three Palestinian prisoners, arrested in connection with their political activities or affiliation, are being denied medical care recommended by their doctors.

Yusuf Ahmad Ibrahim Hamawi, male aged 30 years from Rimal in Gaza. He was reportedly arrested in January 1988 and sentenced to three years' imprisonment and two further years of suspended imprisonment on charges relating to membership of an illegal organisation. He is reportedly serving an additional sentence of two-and-a-half years' imprisonment which was suspended after a previous conviction on similar charges. He is currently in Ashkelon Prison.

Yusuf Hamawi is reported to be suffering a disorder involving the cervical spine. His head is permanently twisted towards one shoulder and he is reported to complain of headaches, and pain in the left arm which is no longer functional. Medical treatment so far appears to be restricted to pain control. A CAT scan which has been recommended by doctors who have seen Yusuf Hamawi has apparently been agreed to in principle but has not been carried out.

Hisham Al Majdalah, male, aged 24 years from Jabalya Refugee Camp (Gaza) identity card No. 91701746 Prison no: 7590.

He was arrested on Aug. 23, 1988 and is awaiting trial on charges relating to political activities in connection with the intifada. He is said to be suffering from a thyroid disorder marked by a goiter. The course of this disorder is not known to Amnesty International but it has been reported that a specialist who saw him on June 1, 1989 while he was in Barzilai Hospital in Ashkelon requested his immediate hospitalisation (though whether for diagnostic investigation or treatment is not known to AI). At the end of June 1989 he remained in the Ketzor Detention Centre in the Negev desert and was reported not to be receiving adequate medical attention.

Mohammad Badawi Salameh Jabran, male aged 42 from Jerusalem.

He was reportedly arrested at midnight on May 28, 1989 by Israeli soldiers and security officers and was said to have been beaten during interrogation. Mohammad Jabran is seriously disabled suffering from rheumatoid arthritis and osteoporosis. He had a total hip replacement in the late 1970s which now needs further surgery. He also suffers from a duodenal ulcer. Mohammad Jabran was first arrested in 1972 and sentenced to six years, apparently in connection with his political activities, but was released in 1975 before expiry of the sentence for health reasons. In 1978 and 1979 he is reported to have been operated for bilateral hip replacement. In 1985 he fell suffering damage to the hips. He was reported to have suffered "marked painful limitation of hip movement." In 1987 he was examined at Makassed Hospital which reported that he "needs revision of the prosthesis and replacement of the femoral component as soon as possible," adding that he was fully incapacitated.

The operation was scheduled for September 1989. Lawyers for Mohammad Jabran asked a court hearing on June 27, 1989 to transfer him to a place where he could receive proper medical care, including to a prison hospital. The request was refused. Subsequently, he was transferred from the Mosabiyia detention centre where he was held.

Amnesty International is calling on the Israeli authorities to ensure that the above-named prisoners receive the medical treatment recommended by their doctors and that the family of Mohammad Jabran is immediately informed of his place of detention.

An orphaned soldier's dream

By Edith M. Lederer
The Associated Press

KABUL — In the orphanage where he grew up, a young soldier talks calmly about taking revenge for the murder of his entire family. Then, he passionately recites his poetry of peace and love, and hatred of the Afghan Mujahideen guerrillas.

"I'm a poet, an artist and a tank commander," said 18-year-old Naimatullah Mawj. "Out of 18 people of my family, I am the only survivor. All my life has become a poem."

Like Mawj, many other Kabul orphans of the 11-year Afghan civil war have no memories of life without rockets, fighting and death. They can only dream of walking in the mountains, driving across the country and nights without curfew. Much of Afghanistan is controlled by the Mujahideen, U.S.-backed Muslim warriors fighting the Soviet-aligned Kabul government.

The boyish-looking soldier, in his camouflage uniform, had returned to the Watan Nursery, the "Orphanage of the Homeland" in northwest Kabul, where the majority of the 1,100 children are the sons and daughters of those killed by guerrillas.

"I came here when I was 9 years old. This is my home. I come to see my teachers, my friends," Mawj said, bursting into poetry about the nursery "which has become a nest of love for me."

The top graduate of the orphanage's secondary school, he published a book of poems and started studying journalism at Kabul University when he decided to join the army 18 months ago.

"I went into the army because I wanted revenge," he said.

Military service is obligatory for Afghan men in areas controlled by the Kabul government, but Mawj gave up a deferment for university studies to serve in the army sooner.

Chosen for President Najib's elite special guard, he first served as a bodyguard for the president's wife and is now a first lieutenant, commanding a tank unit in Kabul, he said.

Mawj said he hadn't killed any of those he blames for murdering his family in the village of Siagat in Parwan province north of Kabul, but he said he has killed three other guerrillas, two with rockets, one with a bullet.

Did it feel good? "Yes, because they had cut my young sister in pieces," he said.

In one poem, Mawj wrote: "I have great hate against an ignorant enemy, but I believe in common sense. I don't want war, I want peace. We all want peace. We are tired of war."

The orphanage promotes patriotism from an early age. A group of 6-year-old sang a song for a visitor which started: "I will become a hero. Oh, guard my homeland."

Speaking in a strong voice, Mawj recited a poem he wrote about Afghanistan:

"Your high mountains are symbols of old pride.
In the spring, you are extremely beautiful and your deserts are so vast."

"I want every corner of you green with flowers and blossoms.
If I write 100,000 stories about you, still it will be too little.
For the service of my people, I am an ongoing tide."

The orphanage also fosters strong links with the Soviet Union and East bloc countries. Every year, almost half the students go to the Soviet Union, Hungary or Czechoslovakia to study. Russian is the only foreign language taught at Watan and students are well versed in Marxist-Leninist philosophy.

Mawj, who studied in the Soviet Union, speaks Russian and just joined the ruling People's Democratic Party of Afghanistan. He said he would like both superpowers out of Afghanistan.

"I have seen a lot of pain and agony, and I give myself the right to ask the United States not to give sophisticated weapons to the extremists because it will increase the bloodshed in Afghanistan," he said.

By Robert Block
Reuters

SALANG HIGHWAY, Afghanistan — The Salang highway has an awesome reputation as the most dangerous road in Afghanistan.

Twisting for 420 kilometres from the capital Kabul through the Hindu Kush mountains to the Soviet border, dusty in summer and icy in winter, it is the country's lifeline.

But its reputation stems not from its precipitous route, sharp curves, narrow lanes and huge potholes but because it is a prime target for Mujahideen rebels.

Both the rebels and the government know that whoever controls the Salang determines whether Kabul has food and fuel for the bitter winter months or whether it starves and goes cold.

Guerrillas say they are planning to block the Salang to put pressure on the capital. But it is not clear whether they can muster the necessary coordination and force to do so.

To show it controls the road, the government recently took 40 journalists in helicopters and armoured personnel carriers up the southern part of the highway.

A 30-minute helicopter ride from Kabul to the Afghan military base at Jabul-os-Saraj, 50 kilometres north, passed over streams of lorries and buses making their way to the capital.

Most traffic was using a small "new Salang highway." The government opened it last spring to divert traffic from the southernmost portion of the main highway most frequently attacked by rebels. Drivers complain about huge dust clouds which choke their vehicles but despite the problems hundreds of cars and trucks manage to make it to Kabul almost daily.

Kabul's lifeline

At Jabul-os-Saraj, a former Soviet military camp now a heavily fortified Afghan army base, the journalists boarded three armoured personnel carriers and headed up the road.

They passed green onion and corn fields which contrasted sharply with the grey and brown mountains of the Hindu Kush which rose in the distance.

Beyond the Kush is the Panjshir valley controlled by one of Afghanistan's most effective rebel commanders, Ahmad Shah Massoud.

The journalists passed lorries and buses loaded with melons, timber, sacks of flour and cement and other goods destined for Kabul. Large numbers of empty trucks headed in the opposite direction toward the Soviet border.

Soldiers waved from outposts in the hills overlooking the road. The Salang highway is lined with burnt-out tanks and the rusting hulks of lorries, vivid reminders of the battles for control of the road first between Soviet troops; who withdrew finally in February this year, and Afghan rebels, and now between the rebels and the Afghan army.

Other vehicles littered the banks of the Salang River that snakes along beside the road.

Further on, small villages tucked into the hillsides or straddling ridges have been reduced to ruins, damaged in crossfire during the 10-year-old civil war and then destroyed in a combined Soviet and Afghan sweep in early January.

The highway was the main route for Soviet troops leaving Afghanistan in February and the villages were levelled to deny them to rebels planning to attack the retreating forces.

Reports say hundreds of villages, suspected of being Mujahideen strongholds, were destroyed by aerial attacks and artillery fire.

Colonel Barakatullah, deputy commander at the Bogha Maidon army outpost, 26 kilometres south of the Salang tunnel, said the villagers were told to evacuate the area before the operation.

However, diplomatic sources in Kabul said many of the villagers chose not to leave and many were killed when the drive began.

One journalist who visited the area last November sadly recalled the thriving atmosphere of these communities which now lay in ruin. Barakatullah said that after the Soviet withdrawal the Mujahideen tried to cut the road but were unsuccessful because the army had established new posts along it.

For all your:

Packing,
Air Freight Forwarding,
Customs Clearance,
Door-to-door Service,
Ticketing and Reservation needs,
please call:

AMIN KAWAR & SONS
Abdel Hamid Sharaf Street
Shmeisani
P.O. Box 7806
Amman, Jordan
Tel. 604676, 604696

CROWN INT'L EST.
packing, shipping,
forwarding, storing,
clearing, door-to-door service

Agents all over the world
Tel: 664098, Fax: 698852
The 2225 BESMCO JO
P.O. Box 929487
AMMAN JORDAN

EVERY DAY
PEOPLE WHO NEED MAINTENANCE SERVICES
CALL US!

Electrolux
P.O. Box 925229 AMMAN
Tel. 604671

STUDIO HAIG
Professional Quality in 1 Hour Service
Develop your colour film at our shop and get:

JUMBO photo
size 30% larger
Free enlargement 20 x 30 cm

Shmeisani - Opp. Grundlays
Bank - Phone: 604042
Swedish tel: 623891

Slide film Processing by Konica
Same Day Service for all E6 films at Salbashian
Trading Co.
Wadi Saqra str.
Next to Petra Bank
Headquarters
Tel: 633418

مطعم قصر المصين
CHINA PALACE RESTAURANT
CANTON, SICHUAN,
PEKING, HUNAN STYLE
Authentic Chinese cuisine
Delicious Chinese cuisine
All in sitting - no extra charge
Special tea party - chicken, beef & fish with special crispy duck
Opens 11:30 a.m. - 3:30 p.m.
7:00 p.m. - 11:30 p.m.
Closes Friday
Tel: 68882/Amman, Shmeisani opposite Commodore Hotel

RESTAURANT CHINA
The first & best
Chinese Restaurant
in Jordan
1st Circle, Jabal Amman, near Ahliah Girls School
Take away is available
Open daily 12:00-3:30
p.m.
6:30-Midnight
Tel. 638968

MANDARIN Chinese Restaurant
The only typical Chinese cuisine in Amman.
Chinese Flaming pot is available
Take away available
Open daily 12:00 - 1:30
18:00 - 23:30
Wadi Saqra Road - near Traffic
Bridge
Amman, Jordan
Tel: 661922

CHEN'S CHINESE RESTAURANT
Mecca Street, Yamouk
Engineers' Housing
Estate, near Kilo Supermarket
Mongolian Barbecue for Lunch Friday only
Tel: 818214
Come and taste our specialties
Open daily 12:00 - 3:30
p.m.
6:30 - Midnight

CHINESE RESTAURANT
TAIWAN TOURISMO
Authentic Chinese Food
Korean Bar-B-Q
Charcoal Flaming Pot
Take-away service
Open daily Noon - 3:30 p.m.
& 6:30 p.m. - midnight
Location: Near 3rd Circle opposite Akliah Hospital
Tel: 641093

Kashmiri Restaurant
FIRST CLASS INDIAN
RESTAURANT
Special Executive Lunches
Take away service
available
Open Daily 12:30 - 3:30 p.m.
7:30 - 11:30 p.m.
After the Holiday Inn hotel
Towards 3rd circle
Tel: 659519 659520

MEXICAN FOOD
Between
3rd & 4th
Circle
Jabal Amman
Tel: 654205
Open For LUNCH & DINNER

Horizons wide for cooperation

THE VERY fact that India is organising an exclusive Indian trade exhibition in Amman Sept. 14-22, 1989, for the first time is both an indicator of growing economic and industrial relations between Jordan and India and an important step to fulfill the potential for cooperation in this field in the background of extremely friendly and close relations not only between the leadership of the two countries but also between the two peoples at all levels.

India is the second most important trading partner for Jordan's exports. The organisation of the fair, following exchange of visits, including the recent one in June of an Indian delegation comprising eminent industrialists and businessmen, would provide an opportunity to importers and entrepreneurs in Jordan to further identify opportunities for imports of consumer, industrial and capital goods from India and select new avenues for industrial cooperation through joint ventures. The potential for cooperation is diverse and wide ranging, including high technology both for local consumption and for exports.

India is the 10th largest industrial nation in the world and produces everything both for its own use and exports; covering consumer, industrial and capital goods in the field of agriculture, light and heavy engineering, defence, textiles, petro-chemicals, pharmaceuticals, transport, railways, buses, automobiles, ships and aircraft, energy — hydro-power, thermal, nuclear

K. Gajendra Singh
Ambassador of India

lites and space technology. The Indian government and its industrial trading and scientific community offer their hand of friendship to share their expertise and experience of industrialisation with entrepreneurs, businessmen and industrialists from the friendly country of Jordan.

The exhibition is but a small window on the wide variety of industrial know-how, technology, consultancy services etc. available in India. I hope that it will act as a catalyst for greater collaboration for mutual benefit in order to fulfill the potential for cooperation and to rise upto the expectations of the top leadership of the two countries.

First step in a long march

INDIA attaches great importance to its traditionally close ties with the people and the government of Jordan. Apart from the links established centuries ago, the two countries have worked in close cooperation resulting in friendly ties at the highest level. His Majesty the King of Jordan visited us in '86, the Crown Prince in April '88, and later our Prime Minister paid an official visit to Jordan in July '88.

Fortunately for us, there are complementarities in the economies of the two countries. These provide a good base for a truly wide ranging trade relationship. Jordan's priorities in the area of construction and industrial projects, also offer interesting new possibilities for cooperation with India, which has gained diversified experience in its own quest for technological self-reliance. It must, however, be admitted that the present profile of bilateral trade does not reflect the true potential or the exceptional friendly relations between the two countries.

The Trade Fair Authority of India is organising an exclusive Indian Exhibition in Jordan for the first time. I hope the Exhibition will make a useful contribution to creating better awareness of Indian capabilities and stimulating interaction on new possibilities in trade and economic cooperation.

A.N. VARMA
Chairman T.F.A.I.
Secretary, Ministry of Commerce
Government of India

FACT SHEET

INDIAN TRADE

EXHIBITION, JORDAN

Objective:

To project India's industrial and technological progress and to explore possibilities of providing consultancy services, to strengthen economic and trade relations and widen the scope for exports.

Dates:

Sept. 14-22, 1989

Timings:

10.00 hrs - 13.00 hrs
(For Business Visitors)
16.00 hrs - 20.00 hrs
(For General Public)

Venue:

International Exhibition Hall,
Marj Al-Hamam, Amman

Profile of participants:

Leading Indian companies engaged in the manufacture of a broad product range.

Range of display

Engineering goods including automobile spare parts, agricultural implements, telecommunication systems, consultancy services, office equipment, earth moving equipment, cinema projectors, optic lenses, cosmetics and other consumer goods.

Business visitors:

Business organisations and industrial importers/exporters have been invited to the Exhibition. Invitees include those from the neighbouring countries.

SEMINARS:

A seminar will be held at 4 p.m., Thursday, Sept. 14, 1989, at the exhibition site on "Jordan-India Trade and Economic Cooperation" with the active support of the Amman Chamber of Industry, the Amman Chamber of Commerce and the Federation of Jordanian Chambers of Industry and Commerce. All interested officials, businessmen and industrialists from Jordan are requested to attend.

A symposium on "Telecommunication Technology" will be held at the exhibition site on Saturday, Sept. 16, 1989, with the active involvement of the Indian Telephone Industries Limited and the Telecommunication Corporation of Jordan. The pre-lunch session, opening at 10 a.m., will deal with transmission technology and the afternoon session, beginning at 4 p.m., will concentrate on switching systems.

The exhibition offers a kaleidoscopic view of the overall development of India in various fields and the competitive edge it offers in the context of economic cooperation with the friendly Arab countries in general and Jordan in particular.

TIES THAT SPAN DECADES: His Majesty King Hussein with then Indian Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, architect of modern India, and his daughter, Indira

Gandhi, who went on to succeed him as prime minister, during a visit the King paid to India in 1963.

INDIAN TRADE EXHIBITION

AT INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION HALL, MARJ AL-HAMAM

SEPTEMBER 14-22, 1989

TIMINGS: 10.00 hrs. - 13.00 hrs. (For Business Visitors)
16.00 hrs. - 20.00 hrs. (For General Public)

DISPLAY PROFILE

Engineering goods including automobile spare parts, agricultural implements, telecommunication systems, consultancy services, office equipment, earth moving equipment, cinema projectors, machine tools, hand tools, builders hardware, cosmetics and other consumer goods.

PARTICIPATION PROFILE

Leading Indian companies engaged in the manufacture of a broad product range.

BUSINESS SYMPOSIA

- Seminar on Jordan-India Trade & Economic Co-operation on September 14, 1989 at 4.00 p.m.
- Symposium on Telecommunication Technology on September 16, 1989 at 10 a.m.
at EXHIBITION HALL

For further information, please contact:

The Director,
INDIAN TRADE EXHIBITION,
International Exhibition Hall,
Marj Al-Hamam
Amman (Jordan)

The First Secretary (Commercial),
Embassy of India,
P.O. Box 2168 Amman (Jordan).
Telephone No.: 651825
Telex : 21068 INDEMBJO
Telegram : Indembassy - Amman
Fax : 00962-6-659540

ORGANISED BY TRADE FAIR AUTHORITY OF INDIA

ARAB POTASH CO. LTD.

Extends its greetings and warmest welcome to:

Minerals & Metals Trading Corporation of India Ltd.

On the occasion of the Indian Trade Exhibition at Amman, Jordan

APC AND MMTC, India's largest international trading company, have a long and fruitful association, an association that is contributing and will contribute to rapid growth of trade of between Jordan and India at present and future.

Cordial welcome to all Indian Industry delegates participating in this promising trade fair.

AHLAN WA SAHLAN

A TYPICAL EXAMPLE OF INDO-JORDANIAN COOPERATION

An external view of the recently completed turnkey Railway work shop complex built by Indian Railway Construction Company Ltd (IRCON) (A Government of India Undertaking) for the Aqaba Railway Corporation at Aqaba, fulfilling its long felt need for repair and maintenance of Locomotives.

Best Wishes

From

SOM DATT BUILDERS

INDIA

AZRAQ JAFR HIGHWAY

PROJECT

P.O. Box 830006
ZAHARAN, AMMAN
TEL: 647203/04
TELEX: 24323 SDB JO
FAX: 647205

Grindlays Bank

Bankers to the Indian Trade Exhibition Welcomes Delegates and Visitors

Make the Trade Connection

With Grindlays Help

ANZ worldwide

His Majesty King Hussein and Indian Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi during the Indian leader's visit to Jordan in July 1988

Jordan-India trade — the evolution

TRADE between India and Jordan is governed by a Trade Agreement signed in February 1976. The Agreement replaced the earlier Trade Agreement signed in 1963. The new Agreement abolished quotas for Indian goods like tea, steel rods and bars, iron and steel tubes and pipes, cotton fabrics and miscellaneous products. India's exports to Jordan are mainly tea, steel tubes and pipes, hand tools, pharmaceuticals, ready-made garments and electric goods, etc.

Two-way trade

Imports made by India from Jordan consist mainly of potassium, raw phosphate and fertilizers. The balance of trade has been in favour of Jordan for quite sometime, with the latest figure for 1988 reading U.S.$118.662 million (Exports to Jordan reading only $8.716 million against imports worth U.S.$122.838 million). The imbalance is mainly because of sizeable imports of rock-phosphate by India from Jordan.

In order to streamline the two-way trade between the two countries and to correct the imbalance of trade, the agreed minutes of the second Indo-Jordanian Trade and Economic Joint Committee meetings which were held in New Delhi in March 1987, called for increasing trade volume between the two countries and the Jordanian side agreed to make all possible attempts to import goods from India up to $40 million during 1987.

Both sides agreed to putting up joint industrial projects for fertilizers either in Jordan or in India, utilising Jordanian raw material for manufacturing products and for marketing the products in both the countries. However, whereas India was able to meet the import targets, Jordan's imports from India remained very low, thus tilting the balance of trade in Jordan's favour. The matter was again taken up in the third meeting of the Indo-Jordanian Joint committees held in Amman from March 27, 1989 to April 1, 1989. Jordan agreed to increase its imports from India to the tune of $50 million in 1989. India agreed to increase its level of imports from Jordan by $20-30 million during 1989 and agreed to import 1,200,000 to 1,500,000 tonnes of rock phosphate, 500,000 to 550,000 tonnes of MOP and 200,000 tonnes of DAP.

Projects

As far as projects are concerned, a road construction project was awarded to M/s Som Dutt Builders and MMTC consortium involving total value of $120 million. The Indian Railway Construction Company, a public sector company was also granted a workshop extension project at Aqaba involving a total value of five million U.S. dollars. The Government of Jordan has further assured that they are taking steps to encourage imports from India and evolve systems so as to source the imports both in public and private sector from India.

Trade Agreement

India's exports to Jordan included in the 1976 Agreement are: tea and coffee; spices including dry ginger; tamarind; henna leaves and powder; vegetable oils and oil cakes; tobacco and tobacco manufactures; rice; sugar; fresh and frozen meats; finished leather and manufactures thereof; engineering goods, including all types of machinery, plants, projects, transport equipment and accessories, power generation, transmission and distribution machinery and equipment, electrical machinery and equipment, domestic appliances of all sorts etc.; cotton/woollen/man-made fibres/textiles and manufactures thereof; woollen hosiery and knitwear; jute manufactures; coal and coal products; chemicals (including dyes), drugs and pharmaceuticals; industrial explosives; glass manufactures; sanitary-ware and fittings; rubber manufactures including tyres and tubes, etc.; plywood; paper and paper products; paints and varnishes; plastics and linoleum; developed cinematographic films; iron and steel items, including billets, blooms, bars and rods, wires, pipes and tubes etc.; cement, asbestos cement and products thereof; sports goods; army software; electronic equipment including radios; telecommunication equipment, etc.; dry and storage batteries; other items such as confectionery, books and stationery articles; agarbattis, etc.

Indian Trade Exhibition

In view of the vast scope that exists for improving trade and commerce, as also to correct the imbalance of trade, a wholly India Trade Exhibition is being held in Amman. The exhibition proposes to bring to the fore India's capabilities in diverse fields. The exhibition also offers an opportunity for inter-action between the business communities of the two countries to forge closer relations, and result in mutually beneficial deals.

'Trade fair culture' deeply embedded in Indian strategy

By a Jordan Times Staff Writer

AMMAN — The "trade fair culture," which now dominates international business, not only owes its origins to India but it has also mushroomed into all of its modern manifestations in the country, according to V.D.N. Rao, director of the Sept. 14-22 Indian Trade Exhibition in Amman.

"The art of displaying wares for sales in special arenas is very much pronounced in India's history dating back to thousands of years," says Mr. Rao, general manager of the Trade Fair Authority of India (TFAI). "What you will be seeing in Amman is a transformation of the concept of our ancient 'melas' (village fairs) where everyone who had something to sell converged and sought to attract buyers."

"What we have been doing over the years is to absorb and develop the concept of attracting business through display in all modern forms and shapes," adds Rao, a TFAI veteran of over 100 international fairs in Western Europe and the Gulf Arab states. "India, like any other country, has totally accepted the idea that trade fairs are the most cost-effective way of export promotion through physically getting your message across to interested parties."

"It's very unfortunate that we did not come to Jordan earlier," he says. "We find tremendous potential in the Kingdom not only in trade but also in long-term industrial projects where India can offer its technology."

Rao pointed out that TFAI, which was established in 1977, now organises dozens of trade exhibitions every year in various parts of India itself, many of them specialised gatherings for a particular line of product. He cites as examples the India International Leather Fair, which is held every January in the southern city of Madras, and the Ahara (Food) Fair and the Indian International Electronics Exhibition held in New Delhi. But, the most colourful and major event for the authority is its annual India International Trade Fair held every November in New Delhi. More than 40 countries take part in the fair.

The Sept. 14-22 event in Amman, according to Rao, is a "modest effort but aiming at lasting results." He expresses confidence that it "will open up a new chapter in Jordanian-Indian economic relations and industrial cooperation."

"We hope to come back with fresher ideas and thoughts," he says. "We hope to make an Indian trade fair in Jordan a regular event."

One of the things that has impressed Rao in Jordan is the "efficiency and cooperation of its people, whether on the official level or otherwise."

He has high words of praise for officials of the Ministry of Industry and Trade, the Amman Chamber of Commerce, the Amman Chamber of Industry and the Jordanian Federation of Chambers of Commerce and Industry. "Without the extensive help they extended to us, we would have faced great difficulties in organising the event," he said. "The same goes for the people from the ministry of finance and customs, who were extremely helpful to us in every sphere."

V.D.N. Rao

Indian Telephone Industries — a reckonable force in telecommunications

INDIAN Telephone Industries Limited (ITI), India's first post-independent public sector undertaking, is a pioneer in telecommunications. It manufactures the entire range of telecommunications equipment, from simple telephones to complex fibre optic systems and satellite communications systems.

ITI has grown over the years into a giant undertaking with several manufacturing units spread all over India (i.e. at Bangalore, Srinagar, Naini, Rae Bareilly, Patna and Marakpur). It has a work force of more than 32,000 employees and it registered a turnover of $460 million during 1988-89.

Backed by some of the most talented engineers and scientists in the country, ITI can design, develop and manufacture equipment tailored to meet specific needs. ITI can also take up turnkey jobs for complete telecom networks.

ITI also has to its credit a number of turnkey jobs executed abroad in over 40 countries. These include Kenya, Uganda, Tanzania, Yemen, Sri Lanka, Nepal, England, Australia, Singapore, Bhutan, United Arab Emirates (UAE), Jordan and others.

ITI has played a pioneering role in research and development (R&D) in telecommunication systems. The R&D wing employs some of the most talented and experienced scientists and engineers in the country and has advanced facilities such as a hybrid micro-circuit lab, a large scale integrated circuit lab, an environmental lab and a computer aided design centre.

The range of products manufactured by ITI include:

Telephone instruments of various types, electromechanical switching systems, strowger and crossbar types, E10B electronic main automatic and trunk automatic exchanges, electronic telex exchanges, PCM systems - (2Mb/s, 8Mb/s, 34Mb/s, 140Mb/s), microwave radio relay systems, military communication equipment, railway control and communication equipment, satellite earth station equipment, SCADA systems, small capacity — digital rural exchanges, EPABXs, CAD systems for PCB&LSI design, CAD system for LSI design, digital microwave systems, digital coaxial systems, optical communication equipment, micro earth stations for data, digital UHF systems, packet switching and ISDN; office automation systems.

In the past, ITI had executed orders in Jordan to the extent of $ 2.5 million. It executed orders like commissioning of a main automatic exchange at Salt town, supply and installation for 24 additional positions at the International manual centre, Amman. These orders were followed by several other contracts, especially a turnkey project for engineering, supply, delivery and installation of exchange equipment for up-gradation of the telecom network in Amman. ITI also received a maintenance contract from the Jordanian Telecommunications Corporation.

THE INDIAN LINK IN INTERNATIONAL TELECOMMUNICATIONS

Indian Telephone Industries Limited is India's biggest and most versatile telecommunications equipment manufacturing company. One of the few in the world that can offer a wide variety of equipment to meet total telecommunication needs.

From telephones to radio relay, fibre optic and satellite communication equipment.

Besides, ITI has also developed and manufactured a number of sophisticated electronic switching systems, digital switching systems, optical fibre communication systems, satellite earth stations, packet switching equipment — to name a few.

Backed by some of the most talented engineers in the world, ITI can design, develop and manufacture equipment to suit specific needs for hotels, offices, coal mines, electricity boards, defence systems, railways, and so many more.

ITI can also undertake turnkey jobs for complete telecom networks and has, over the years, lent its specialised services to more than 40 countries worldwide.

Today, with the extensive resources of its own R&D set-up coupled with the best technology, ITI has dedicated itself to the constant development of telecommunications, to bringing people all over the world closer to each other — and to the future.

ITI INDIAN TELEPHONE INDUSTRIES LIMITED
(A Govt. of India Undertaking)

Corporate Office: 49, Museum Road
Bangalore 560 001 Tel: 566116 Telex: 0845-8899

Units at: Bangalore, Rae Bareilly, Naini, Srinagar,
Patna and Marakpur

Regional and Sub-offices all over India

NOT JUST TELEPHONES—TOTAL TELECOM NETWORKS

MMTC, India's largest international trading company, invites you

To a display of a wide and exciting range of Indian products plain or studded with precious stones at the MMTC pavilion, Indian Trade Fair, on show at Amman.

On display are a wide range of engineering and consumer goods, goods created by exquisite production skills, technological and manufacturing capabilities and oriented to Jordan's needs. There is more: an exhibition-cum-sale of exclusive gold jewellery produced by the master craftsmen from India.

Open daily from Sept. 14 to Sept. 22, 1989, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. exclusively for business visitors; 4 p.m. to 8 p.m. for all others

We welcome you to also contact:

Our Resident Manager
Mr. A.K. Gandhi,

The MMTC of India Ltd., Shami Plaza Building P.O. Box No. 925067, AMMAN Telephone: 682883

Supplement prepared by P. V. Vivekanand.

Jordan Phosphate Mines Company Augmentation of Indo-Jordanian cooperation

Primary handling of phosphate at Chaltyn

JPMC welcomes the esteemed Indian companies participating in the primary "Indian Trade Exhibition" in Jordan.

A show case of India's industrial achievements which displays the marvels of dedication, unlimited ambition and tenacity for success.

Processed phosphate

JPMC & MMTC have been for more than four decades joining efforts to provide to the Indian fertilizer industry the required quality phosphate, the much needed for India's agriculture prosperity. Jordanian-Indian relations have always been in an extraordinary atmosphere characterised by understanding and cooperation.

We are confident that the Indian Trade Exhibition will open further horizons and that our cooperation will continue to grow to the benefit of both countries through entwined efforts and that Jordanian fertilizers will continue to contribute to enhancing the endeavours of India's farmers.

The fertilizer complex at Aqaba

SEPT / SEPT

Le schéma est désormais classique. Au moment même où le triumvirat de la Ligue arabe (Algérie-Maroc-Arabie Saoudite) s'apprête à relancer sa mission de paix au LIBAN, les affrontements ont repris de plus belle à Beyrouth. La marine syrienne a notamment renforcé son blocus du «réduit chrétien» en ouvrant le feu lundi sur deux navires, dont l'aéroglisseur qui assure l'unique liaison avec Chypre. Le «Santa Maria», avec 330 passagers à son bord, non plus que le cargo «Clara», transportant des produits alimentaires à destination du Liban, n'ont été touchés par les salves des vedettes de Damas. Cet épisode illustre cependant les difficultés auxquelles continuent de faire face les leaders arabes pour résoudre la dernière crise libanaise, longue déjà de six mois. La plupart d'entre eux se disent néanmoins «confiants» dans les chances du triumvirat de parvenir à un véritable cessez-le-feu, à l'instar du roi Hussein, qui lundi encore a rappelé qu'«aucun sommet arabe n'était pour le moment envisagé». Un «optimisme» et même une «satisfaction», que la France a partagé le même jour par la voix du secrétaire général du ministère des Affaires étrangères, François Sheer, qui achevait à Rabat sa tournée des capitales concernées par le conflit.

La PROPOSITION EN DIX POINTS du président égyptien pour résoudre la guerre israélo-palestinienne a reçu depuis le week-end dernier l'appui de plusieurs personnalités de l'OLP, dont Abou Mazen, membre du comité exécutif de la centrale palestinienne. Ce dernier a notamment approuvé que l'initiative d'Hosni Moubarak, en faveur d'élections dans les territoires occupés, s'inscrive «dans le cadre d'un règlement global». Alors que le Front populaire de libération de la Palestine de Georges Habbache rappelle depuis Damas son opposition à tout scrutin sous occupation israélienne, le conseiller de Yasser Arafat, Bassam Abou Sharif, s'est dit «prêt à rencontrer immédiatement un membre du Parti travailliste [israélien] pour discuter tous les détails» de ce nouveau plan. Une déclaration qui fait suite à celle de Shimon Perez, selon lequel le «plan Moubarak» pourrait servir de base à des négociations avec des Palestiniens. En totale contradiction avec son premier ministre, Yitzhak Shamir, le leader du centre-gauche israélien a ajouté qu'il était en faveur de la participation des Palestiniens de Jérusalem-Est à d'éventuelles élections. M. Perez a également rappelé que son parti avait fait sien le principe des «territoires contre la paix», pierre angulaire de tout dialogue direct avec l'OLP. (D'après agences).

EN BREF

Nominations. Ali Suheimat a été nommé mardi maire du Grand Amman en remplacement d'Abdoul Raouf Rawabdeh. Ce dernier avait démissionné au début du mois pour pouvoir se présenter aux élections générales du 8 novembre prochain. Par ailleurs, le général Fadel Ali a succédé au général Hadi al Majali à la tête de la Streté générale du royaume. Le nouveau directeur était jusqu'à présent le commandant des forces blindées spéciales de l'armée jordanienne.

Accord sur la dette. La Jordanie et le Club de Londres sont parvenus lundi à Amman à un accord de principe pour le rééchelonnement d'une partie de la dette extérieure du royaume, estimée à 1,1 milliard de dollars. Au terme de deux jours de négociations, les banques privées créancières ont accepté d'étaler le remboursement de 575 millions de dollars (payables avant le 30 juin 1991) sur une période de 11 ans, avec un délai de grâce de 5 ans. Amman s'est engagé en contrepartie à verser l'intégralité des intérêts dus sur ce montant pour 1989, et qui s'élevait à 82 millions de dollars. Une nouvelle réunion doit se tenir dans la capitale britannique, à une date non encore précisée, pour finaliser l'accord.

Mitterrand à Lisbonne. Le président français Mitterrand, se rendra mardi prochain à Lisbonne dans le cadre d'une tournée des capitales de la Communauté économique européenne, qu'il a engagée en sa qualité de président en exercice de la CEE. Le chef de l'Etat s'entretiendra notamment avec le premier ministre portugais, Calvaco Silva, au cours de cette visite.

Vatican-Kremlin. L'ambassadeur soviétique à Rome a confirmé dimanche que Mikhaïl Gorbatchev rencontrerait Jean-Paul II au Vatican, à l'occasion de sa prochaine visite officielle en Italie au mois de novembre. Cette annonce fait suite au courrier adressé par le numéro un du Kremlin au pape, il y a trois semaines.

«Erreur». La «plus grosse erreur» que Solidarité ait jamais faite est d'avoir accepté le poste de premier ministre dans le nouveau gouvernement polonais, a déclaré lundi soir à la BBC le chef historique du syndicat, Lech Walesa. Expliquant que son mouvement n'était pas «prêt», le leader de Solidarité a estimé que ses amis avaient dû accepter «faute de choix» de participer au pouvoir, pour empêcher une reconstitution du monopole du parti communiste.

92 ans de prison. Un membre de l'Armée républicaine irlandaise a été condamné lundi à 92 ans de prison par la cour d'assises de Belfast. Damien Martin Nicoll, 22 ans, avait servi d'éclaireur aux tireurs de l'IRA, qui ont abattu un jeune policier en mars 1981 à Londonderry.

Réfugiés. L'ouverture des frontières occidentales de la Hongrie s'est traduite lundi et mardi par le passage en RFA de plus de 8.000 réfugiés est-allemands. Selon Bonn, qui s'est félicité de l'attitude de Budapest, près de 20.000 autres ressortissants est-allemands sont entrés en Hongrie dans de même temps. Berlin-Est a accusé mardi la RFA de mener une campagne de «calomnie» et la Hongrie de «rupture unilatérale» des accords de contrôle des migrations entre les deux pays.

Trafic. La justice néerlandaise a ordonné lundi l'ouverture d'une enquête sur un trafic de tissus humains entre les Pays-Bas et l'Allemagne Fédérale. Ces tissus, prélevés sur des patients décédés dans des hôpitaux hollandais sans l'autorisation des familles, sont notamment destinés à des opérations de chirurgie esthétique, et acheminés par l'intermédiaire d'une société d'appareillage médical, Brown Medical. Le trafic a été découvert début août à la frontière entre les deux pays.

Non conformes. Près de la moitié des médicaments de l'industrie pharmaceutique suisse, troisième exportateur mondial, vendus dans le tiers monde ne sont pas conformes aux exigences cliniques et pharmacologiques, selon l'étude d'un médecin allemand, le docteur Robert Hartog. Certains, selon lui, sont même dangereux. 17% seulement des médicaments helvétiques exportés figurent sur la liste des produits essentiels, établie par l'Organisation mondiale de la santé.

Antisémitisme. Le parquet de Paris a ouvert samedi une enquête judiciaire contre le cinéaste Claude Autant-Lara, pour «complicité d'injures raciales» et «provocation à la haine raciale». Cette décision fait suite aux attaques proférées par l'ex-député du Front national (extrême-droite) contre les juifs et l'ancien président du Parlement de Strasbourg, Simone Veil, dans le magazine «Globe». Les propos d'Autant-Lara (Les juifs, «ethnie politique qui essaie de s'implanter et de dominer...» «Quand on me parle de génocide, je dis, en tout cas, ils ont raté la mère Veil») ont provoqué un tollé d'indignations dans la classe politique française, comme parmi de nombreuses organisations religieuses et humanitaires.

Très cher. Entre 1.500 et 2.300 dollars serait le prix à payer pour... avoir le droit de faire la manche sur les Champs-Élysées. C'est ce qu'a affirmé lundi à Paris le «comité de sauvegarde des Champs-Élysées», en dénonçant la «course des miracles» qui menace selon lui le site.

Arrêt brutal de l'extension du réseau, factures impayées...

Le téléphone jordanien sur le fil

Avec l'abandon du dernier plan quinquennal, le projet d'extension du réseau téléphonique jordanien est passé à la trappe. L'aggravation brutale de la crise économique et financière, que traverse le royaume, a sonné le glas des projets de développement de la Telecom Corporation (TCC). Un coup dur pour les habitants des quelque 300 villages et petites localités du royaume, qui attendaient avec impatience leur raccordement.

Mohammad Shahid Ismail (à gauche), directeur général de la TCC, dont les ambitions ont plus que de mal à survivre à l'austérité économique et qui, faute de mieux, remet les téléphones à l'ordre du jour.

Révision à la baisse. Touché de plein fouet par la suppression du plan quinquennal 1988/1992, le service des télécommunications jordanien et ses 3.450 salariés ont dû adopter un profil bas. Après six années de développement et de modernisation du réseau téléphonique national, qui permettaient aujourd'hui à 250.000 foyers et bureaux de bénéficier de lignes automatiques, la TCC se retrouve en état de quasi léthargie.

«Nous prévoyions l'installation de plus de 200.000 nouvelles lignes (1) pour assurer la couverture complète du pays, explique son directeur, Mohammad Shahid Ismail. Elles devaient permettre de supprimer les opérateurs, encore nécessaires dans plus de 300 localités, et de servir enfin autant d'autres villages et petites villes toujours privés de téléphones. Le coup est plutôt dur pour ces derniers, qui devront vraisemblablement patienter plus de 5 ans encore avant de sortir de leur isolement.

L'implantation de 14 nouveaux centraux téléphoniques et de 76 «satellites» (relais des centraux), affichée dans le rapport d'activité

1987 de la TCC comme l'un de ses objectifs majeurs à l'aube des années 1990, restera donc lettre morte. Tout comme le remplacement de l'une des grandes antennes paraboliques de réception satellite dans la plaine de Baqa ou encore la construction d'un nouveau centre de communications nationales et internationales à Amman.

Contrats dénoncés

Difficile à avaler pour la compagnie nationale, l'abandon de ces projets a également affecté les deux grands fournisseurs étrangers d'équipements et de services à la Jordanie: Alcatel, côté français et NEC, côté japonais. D'autant plus, que l'un et l'autre ont déjà construit, au début de la décennie, les 21 centraux numériques et les 58 satellites du réseau automatique du royaume.

A la tête d'un consortium, qui regroupait également TKT et les Câbles de Lyon, Alcatel a été le maître d'oeuvre de la pose des lignes et de tous les raccordements dans la moitié nord du pays, Amman compris. Un contrat qui représentait 590 millions de francs en 1981. «L'année dernière, nous avions signé un nouvel accord de gré à gré portant sur la mise en place de 14.000 lignes supplémentaires», rappelle Alcatel de l'assistance technique à la TCC. Estimé à 80 millions de francs, ce dernier contrat ne sera pas honoré.

«En tant qu'organisme d'Etat, nous n'avons pas le choix», commente Mohammad Shahid Ismail. Malgré son statut «commercial» et d'importants bénéfices (2), la TCC n'a plus un sou à investir. «Les profits que nous faisons sont directement versés à la banque centrale. Quant à notre budget, il dépend directement du ministère des Transports et des Communications», poursuit-il.

Mises à la diète pour cause d'austérité, les télécom jordanien tentent néanmoins de convaincre le gouvernement de donner son feu vert à un «plan d'urgence», en cours d'élaboration au siège de la TCC. «Il s'agit pour nous d'obtenir l'argent nécessaire à l'optimisation de certaines infrastructures déjà en place. C'est le cas de plusieurs centraux et satellites, sur lesquels nous pouvons encore connecter de nouveaux abonnés», souligne son directeur général.

Un trou de 5 millions

Ces mesures se révèlent d'autant plus indispensables, reconnaît-on à la TCC, que les listes d'attente pour obtenir une ligne s'allongent de jour en jour. «Le réseau étant presque totalement saturé, certaines demandes d'abonnement peuvent prendre un an, avant d'être satisfaites», avoue Mohammad Shahid Ismail. «Il faut souvent attendre la fin d'un abonnement avant de pouvoir brancher un nouveau client», ajoute un technicien.

Un malheur n'arrivant jamais seul, les télécom connaissent d'autres déboires, dont la nette augmentation des factures impayées. Une note, qui selon les services du contentieux de la TCC, s'élève aujourd'hui à 5 millions de dinars. «En six mois, nous avons dû couper plus de 5.000 lignes, précise le directeur général, et presque autant le seront prochainement si les abonnés ne s'exécutent pas avant la fin du mois».

Malgré de nombreux avertissements, certains d'entre eux auront bien du mal à s'acquitter d'une dette, qui culmine parfois au delà de 3.000 ou 4.000 dinars.

«Les Arabes sont des gens qui aiment parler. Ils restent longtemps au téléphone, même si leur interlocuteur se trouve à l'étranger, ce qui arrive fréquemment», vu le nombre d'expatriés jordaniens, affirme Mohammad Shahid Ismail. D'autres avancent une explication moins sociologique, comme cet ingénieur de la TCC, selon lequel ce manque à gagner vient d'abord de la «politique laxiste de la compagnie à l'égard des mauvais payeurs».

Une version que le directeur général conçoit sans la reconnaître, en indiquant que les télécom ont adopté «récentement» une attitude de fermeté: «désormais, les abonnés ont deux semaines pour payer leur facture. Le premier avertissement se traduit par une interdiction des appels, uniquement. Puis, nous coupons la ligne, avant de rompre le contrat. Enfin, au bout d'un mois, le dossier du client est transmis au ministère des Finances, qui se charge des poursuites judiciaires».

Confrontée à un avenir à court terme plutôt sombre, la TCC a décidé de remettre les téléphones à l'ordre du jour. 240 cabines et 180 téléphones à pièces et à cartes magnétiques, offerts par la firme américaine Telematic doivent arriver prochainement à Aqaba. «Ils seront installés dans les rues, dans certains établissements publics ou hôtels d'Amman et de quelques autres villes», promet Mohammad Shahid Ismail. Avec une angoisse à peine feinte: celle de les voir rapidement tomber dans le même état de délabrement que la majorité des 200 publicphones déjà en service dans la capitale et qui coûtent des dizaines de milliers de dinars par an à une compagnie exangue.

Alain Remon.

(1) Le projet, estimé à 100 millions de dinars, avait fait l'objet d'un premier appel d'offre international en février 1988.
(2) En 1987, ils dépassaient 20 millions de dinars, contre 18 millions en 1986.

Exposition à la Cité des Sciences de Paris

Le mystère des poissons électriques

Une horloge pilotée par les décharges électriques naturelles d'un poisson, un gymnarque du Nil, voilà la pièce la plus étrange de l'exposition «L'Invention du Temps», qui présente la Cité des Sciences et de l'Industrie, à la Villette, depuis le 14 février dernier. Ce gadget met en évidence les possibilités extraordinaires des poissons électriques, dont l'étude est capitale pour comprendre notre propre système nerveux.

Il existe quelque 500 espèces de poissons électriques, la plupart vivant en eau douce. Certains émettent des décharges d'une tension telle (jusqu'à 700 volts), qu'ils s'en servent pour électrocuter leurs proies, comme la raie torpille, l'un des rares poissons de mer électriques. D'autres produisent un courant faible, comme celui d'une pile de poche, qu'ils utilisent comme un radar pour s'orienter et percevoir leur environnement immédiat.

Les poissons électriques exploitent la propriété de l'eau conductrice du courant. Ils émettent continuellement un courant alternatif ou pulsé, qui leur revient modifié par les obstacles rencontrés et qui les renseigne sur la nature, la position, le déplacement et même l'accélération de ces objets. L'émission de courant est d'une telle régularité que l'on peut récupérer cette énergie électrique cadencée, la convertir en secondes et alimenter une horloge. Ou n'importe quoi d'autre: un oscillographe, une ampoule électrique, un haut-parleur... C'est à ce type d'expérimentation que se livrent les chercheurs de l'Aquarium tropical de Nancy, afin de mieux comprendre l'extraordinaire système dont sont équipés les poissons qui vivent dans un monde électrique.

Les organes émetteurs du gymnarque sont constitués de 8 rangées de cellules, appelées électrocytes, disposées sur les flancs. Chacune émet une centaine de millivolts. Même si ce courant ne sert qu'à la détection, il n'en est pas moins une arme redoutable. En effet, vis-à-vis des poissons non-électriques, ces «radars» leur permet de s'approcher de leurs proies inconnues. De plus, entre eux, les poissons électriques n'ont pas besoin de se battre: il leur suffit de brouiller astucieusement le radar de l'adversaire. Un poisson peut choisir la fréquence d'émission d'un congénère, se faire entendre.

Pour capter l'information, 100.000 électro-récepteurs tapissent la peau du poisson (situés principalement sur la partie antérieure du corps) et constituent une véritable «réseau» par laquelle se projette l'image électrique du monde environnant. Le gymnarque peut détecter à plusieurs mètres la présence de sources électriques étrangères et en identifier la nature: partenaire, congénère, rivaux, proies ou prédateurs électriques qui échangent ainsi menaces, appels, ou... invitations amoureuses. L'interprétation de ces données se fait grâce à des systèmes de codage. Systèmes sur lesquels se penchent aujourd'hui les chercheurs. L'étude du gymnarque et de ses congénères a déjà fait un grand pas dans la connaissance du système nerveux en général, humain y compris. Si les mystères de la réception de l'information par le cerveau et des ordres qu'il donne aux muscles sont un jour élucidés, l'homme le devra à ces étranges poissons.

Evelyn Simonnet.

Le gymnarque du Nil est capable de faire fonctionner une horloge, grâce à ses décharges électriques.

This exciting motor sporting event will take place today and Friday, spectators are welcome to come and watch, the best views of the cars can be seen from the following locations:

Thursday, 14th September at 4.00 p.m. from the side of the Queen Alia Airport highway between the Naur bridge and the underpass in the Amman direction. The rally route is next to the highway. The competing cars will pass twice in numerical order at one minute intervals.

Friday, 15th September, start from the Marriott Hotel at 8.30 a.m. The first high speed section is at the rear of the Amman National Park starting at 9.00 a.m. The best location to see the cars in action is from the side of the airport highway near the Alia Gateway Hotel at the bridge over the wadi and the railway line. Competing cars will pass through the under-bridge five times commencing at 9.26, 10.55, 12.28, 13.57, 15.30 hrs.

The cars will arrive at the Alia Gateway Hotel at approximately 11.10 and 14.15 for repairs and regrouping.

The finish of the event will be at the Marriott Hotel at exactly 6.00 p.m. Everyone is welcome to watch this rally from virtually any location but please keep well back from the sides of the tracks as the cars will be travelling at high speed.

Mots Croisés

par Florence Menaldi

	A	B	C	D	E	F	G	H	I	J
1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10

Horizontalement.

1: artisan de la musique. 2: trouvas la mort; a fait du tort. 3: unique. 4: forment le squelette; alés; 5: dans la gamme; voie de communication. 6: épier; enlever. 7: Institut National de l'Audiophonie; tachera. 8: sot; pour mieux sauter. 9: saison. 10: primordiaux.

Verticalement.

A: irréalisable. B: pronom personnel; animal. C: certain; sans relief. D: marque l'exercice; forme d'être. E: bruits indistincts; préposition. F: abiment. G: négation; bravo espagnol. H: attache, quand il n'embarque pas. I: en tenue d'Adam; précipitera. J: ouvriers.

(Solution en bas de page)

A L'AFFICHE

CINEMA

The Grape of wrath, de John Ford, avec Henry Fonda, Jane Darwell, John Carradine et Charley Grapewin. Après avoir purgé une peine de prison pour meurtre, Tom Joad retrouve sa famille, accusée à la famine par une terrible sécheresse. Sans autre solution que d'abandonner leur terre, les Joad décident d'émigrer vers la Californie avec l'espoir d'y commencer une nouvelle vie...

Centre culturel français, jeudi 14 et dimanche 17 septembre à 19h00 (en français).

Poussière d'ange, d'Edmond Niermans, avec Bernard Giraudeau et Fabienne Bastien (1987). Série noire (suite). En plus de ses problèmes professionnels, l'inspecteur Blount patage dans sa vie privée. En pleine dérive, il fait la connaissance de Violetta...

Centre culturel français, jeudi 14 septembre à 20h00 (en français, sous-titré en arabe).

Ciné-club. Séances respectivement à 13h00, 15h00, 17h00, 19h00 et 21h00. Jeudi 14: Tell them, Willy Boy is here: The wedding of Maria Braun; Le bon, le laid (Bianchi); Amadeus. Vendredi 15: Les 55 jours de Pékin; The Hurricane; Bank shot; Under fire; Taming of the shrew. Samedi 16: Major Dundee; Night boat; They kill horses, don't they; Salvador; Starman.

Dimanche 17: Caravans; 48 hours; The heritage; War zone; Near dark. Lundi 18: Lost command; Indiana Jones;

Docteur Justice; Death race 2000; Night fugitive. Mardi 19: Out of Africa; Three Dam road; Alien; The chain; Fatal attraction. Mercredi 20: Missing; Tonareri; Les trois jours du Condor; World, according to Garp. Films en version originale. Tél: 663922.

Centre de l'université, à droite après l'arrêt Jérusalem puis prendre à gauche, carrefour 300m.

CONFERENCE

Les Nabatéens en Jordanie centrale, autour des fouilles de Tannour et de Dharra. Conférence animée par François Villeneuve, maître de conférence à l'E.N.S. et ancien secrétaire de l'Institut français d'archéologie du Proche-Orient à Amman, de 1983 à 1987.

Centre culturel français, mercredi 20 septembre à 18h00 (en français).

TELEVISION

Mademoiselle Julie, adaptée de l'oeuvre d'August Strindberg par Boris Vian, réalisée par Yves-André Hubert, avec Fanny Ardant, Niels Arestrup et Brigitte Catillon. Jeune aristocrate, mademoiselle Julie invite son valet à danser (en l'absence de père) et s'offre à lui, mi-impérieuse, mi-conquise. S'engage ensuite un long rapport de force entre Julie et le domestique...

JTV, vendredi 15 septembre à 17h30.

Solution des mots croisés

Horizontalement.

1: instrument. 2: mourus; nu. 3: purement. 4: os; sénors; 5: ut; rue. 6: salet; oter. 7: INA; salira. 8: bête; élan. 9: été. 10: essentiels.

Verticalement.

A: impossible. B: nous; éne. C: sir; plates. D: très; été; rumeurs; en. F: usent. G: ni; olé H: entortille. I: nu; ruera. J: tissanda.

Liverpool scores 9 in English League

LIVERPOOL, England (AP) — Liverpool swept to the top of the English first division on goal difference Tuesday, destroying newcomers Crystal Palace 9-0, the London club's worst league defeat in its history.

Playing at the peak of their form, their form, Kenny Dalglish's "Reds" gave promoted Palace a lesson in finishing, starting with Steve Nicol's seventh-minute goal.

Steve McMahon and Ian Rush made it 3-0 at halftime but six more goals hit the back of the Palace net after the break.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES GOREN
AND OMAR SHARIF
© 1989 Tribune Media Services, Inc.

FINESSE, OR NOT?

Both vulnerable. North deals.

NORTH
♠ A 4
♥ A K J
♦ K 3 2
♣ A K J 10 6

EAST
♠ 10 9 8 6 2
♥ 7 6
♦ 7 6
♣ 7 8 4

SOUTH
♠ K 5 3
♥ Q 10 8 3 2
♦ A 7 5
♣ 5

The bidding:
North East South West
1 NT Pass 3 ♥ Pass
3 ♠ Pass 4 ♦ Pass
5 ♠ Pass 5 NT Pass
7 ♥ Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♠

Just because a finesse is available does not necessarily mean you have to commit yourself to it blindly. It might be the best play you have, but try to get all the information you can.

North's three-spade rebid was a cue-bid in support of hearts. After two more cue-bids, South used the Grand Slam Force to find out whether North held the missing top trump honors. He did.

Declarer won the first trick in dummy then tested trumps by cashing the ace-king. Next came the king of clubs and a club ruff, followed by the king of spades and a spade ruff, on which East discarded a diamond. A club was ruffed high as West discarded a spade, and the last trump was drawn, on which East and dummy both parted with a diamond.

Declarer crossed to dummy with the king of diamonds and in a futile attempt to drop the queen, cashed the ace of clubs, discarding a diamond from hand as West shuffled a spade. Everyone was now down to two cards, declarer's being the ace-jack of diamonds. When he led a diamond from dummy, East produced the ten. Should declarer finesse or not, and why?

If you have been following the play, you should have no trouble getting this one right. East's last card is known to be the queen of clubs, while West has a spade and the last diamond, the queen. So go up with the ace of diamonds, drop the queen and claim your grand slam. Easy, isn't it.

HOROSCOPE

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 14, 1989
By Thomas S. Pierson, Astrologer, Carroll Righter Foundation

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Despite a number of compensating conditions threatening your forward momentum, you will have the opportunity, through your own perseverance, to succeed on a large scale under today's positive aspects.

ARIES: It is necessary to retrace steps in your daily routines that require further revision. Put more charm in your business so better results can be obtained.

TAURUS: You can now go forward by clearing up obligations that have been on hold. Go with family members to outside places of recreation that are to be eliminated.

GEMINI: You find some information obtained to do a better job does not work so eliminate it. Your family will join you in settling whatever promises you have made regarding dwellings.

MOON CHILDREN: You can put the finishing touches on a business proposition in which an expert will join. Your family and you will have a good time outside the doors of your residence.

LEO: Encourage friends to go out with you socially who will cooperate with your wishes. In any money matters be sure you operate with anyone else who is involved.

VIRGO: Put off inviting associates into your home until a more convenient moment. You need to make sure you know any expenses before going along with a busy friend.

LIBRA: You certainly need to avoid quick or impulsive decisions in business or finances. Go with an interested friend to find out the actual cost of amusements that attract.

SCORPIO: Many friends who have wishes different from your own should be captured to now. Put off business changes until they clarify results better.

SAGITTARIUS: Look for some cooperative friends who are in a position on power or authority. This is the time to put into motion long desired ambitions at your home.

CAPRICORN: The time is not yet up to make those changes at your dwelling. Don't let a practical problem bring a sticky situation between you and a good friend.

AQUARIUS: At last an expert aware of your needs for some data will release it to you. Entertain persons in your home who at one time or another have rendered you favors.

PISCES: Great friends from a distance warmly but don't break up your own routine. Now you can invite charming partners into your home for a happy time.

Today's child: If your child were born today he or she will be full of affection and bring much joy and happiness to those around them. This progeny will enjoy a fine education and will become successful and independent early in life. Over working may be a problem if it isn't controlled.

"The stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you.

EUROPEAN SOCCER

Maradona plans short Napoli return

MILAN (R) — Napoli look set to have their trio of South Americans, including the recalcitrant Diego Maradona, all present for the opening of their defence of the UEFA Cup against Sporting Lisbon on Thursday — at least for part of the match.

Back in training after settling his long-distance month-long feud with the club, Maradona has travelled to Portugal and is eager to join Brazilians Careca and Alemão on the field.

But his presence may be of fairly short duration.

"Reason tells me that it would be better not to play. But I know that the desire to get back on the field will prevail — who knows, maybe for 20 or 30 minutes," the Argentine World Cup captain said.

"But the fans can be sure of one thing, Maradona, number one in the world, will be back."

European cup holders AC Milan are far less fortunate, although they have had some promising news from one half of their injured Dutch duo of Ruud Gullit and Marco van Basten.

While neither could even be considered for Wednesday's opening European encounter with HJK Helsinki, van Basten returned from the Netherlands this week and said he hoped to play again in a month.

"On Monday I should be able to start running again and maybe I'll be able to play again in a month's time," said van Basten, who recently underwent a cartilage operation.

In Spain the main preoccupation of league champions Real Madrid this week has been Michel Gonzalez's foot.

Newspapers reported a disagreement between club president Ramon Mendoza and Michel.

Mendoza said Michel, who has a muscle injury on the sole of his left foot, was going to have an operation but Michel retorted it was his foot and he did not want surgery.

He said he felt he was recovering without it.

The other focus of attention has been Liverpool's John Aldridge, due to sign for Real Sociedad for around $1.4 million on a three-year contract worth about $240,000 a year to the player.

With that deal apparently sewn up, British newspapers turned their gaze on the transfer-seeking England under-21 international Danny Wallace, for whom Southampton want £1.25 million ($1.94 million).

Arsenal and Tottenham have joined Manchester United, who have had two offers refused.

MANY VILLAS AND APARTMENTS FOR RENT & SALE

Furnished or Unfurnished

In Shmeisani, Sweifiah, Abdoun and many other locations.

For more information please call

Wael Real Estate

Tel: 685342

CAR FOR SALE

DUTY UNPAID

Renault 30TS V6

1979. Good condition.

Telephone 671125

OFFICE FURNITURE FOR SALE

One each: Jwico desk set.

Reska reception desk

Plus: chairs, facit modular panels, etc.

Call: 643361

NEW GYM JOEY

B.A.G.A. PRE-SCHOOL MOVEMENT LEARNING PROGRAMME AT THE INTERNATIONAL COMMUNITY SCHOOL

10 Week course for:

1-2 year olds with a parent 40 mins.

3-4 year olds without parents 1 hour

Commencing Saturday, 23rd September

1-2 year olds from 10.00-10.40 a.m.

3-4 year olds from 11.00-12.00 a.m.

Registration at the school office or by telephone by Sunday 17th September. Places are limited.

Notification of acceptance by Thursday 21st September.

Fee JD 20.

Course director: Mrs. C.J. Awad. Tel: 841970

CAR FOR SALE

A DUTY FREE Mercedes 280SE, 1983 model is available for sale by tender.

Offers should be submitted at the Australian Embassy between 4th and 5th Circle, Jabal Amman.

Closing date: 12.00 hours on 21 September, 1989.

TOM & JERRY

NEW FROM TOM & JERRY

American Fried Chicken

Shmeisani, Tel. 681826
Jabal Amman, 7th Circle, Tel. 825940

Competitors line-up for Jordan Raid rally

AMMAN (J.T.) — Entries for the BP Trophy 200 Raid four-wheel drive rally have been arriving at the Royal Automobile Club headquarters in encouraging numbers. So far the club has received confirmed entries for the event from Saudi Arabia, Lebanon, Kuwait, Qatar, Bahrain and Dubai. There are also 12 entries from Jordan, prominent among them is Sharif Hussein Ibn Nawas. Several of our leading rally drivers such as Hisham Al Muthi, Issa Halabi and others will be taking part in this challenging event.

Only off road four-wheel-drive vehicles are eligible for this tough rally and all the leading makes are represented including Range Rover, Toyota, Nissan, Mitsubishi and Daihatsu.

The route has been chosen so as to provide a combination of desert conditions ranging from flat open terrain to hilly rough mountain tracks and even some parts through and over deep wadis. There are four selective sections where competitors are required to cover the route in the minimum possible time. These are each used four times which minimises time needed for practice and allows spectators several opportunities to see the competing cars without the need to move from the better vantage points.

A prologue maximum speed stage will be run on Thursday afternoon, at 4.00 p.m. This will decide the starting order for the raid the following day. This prologue will be an ideal opportunity for spectators to see all the cars in action, the route is at the edge of one of the main highways on the outskirts of Amman so it makes an ideal viewing spot.

Four-wheel-drive motor sport over rough terrain is a rapidly growing form of competition, it is both exciting and "demands skill on the part of the drivers and co-drivers while not needing expensive preparation of the vehicles themselves in order to be competitive. There are classes and groups for basic standard types of vehicle as well as for those which have been modified to provide better performance."

FLAT FOR RENT

3 bedrooms, salon, kitchen in a building with central heating and lift in Um-Uthaina near to Um-Uthaina Hotel.

For information call 678926, 603060

TO ALL MEMBERS OF THE JORDANIAN-SCANDINAVIAN FRIENDSHIP ASSOCIATION

The inauguration of the Scandinavian Forest by HM King Carl Gustaf and HM Queen Silvia of Sweden will take place on September 20th. For more details please revert to your copy of the Bulletin No. 3.

The JSFA therefore invites all Members to attend this Royal picnic, to greet our Royal visitors and to have a good time together.

Kindly contact the Danish Consulate at telephone No. 603703 to confirm your attendance and to pick up your entry ticket not later than the 16th of September.

NO ENTRANCE IS ALLOWED WITHOUT ENTRY TICKETS!!

The Society For Care of Neurological Patients

On the occasion of the visit to Jordan by Their Majesties King Carl Gustaf and Queen Silvia of Sweden and under the patronage of H.H. Princess Majda Ra'ad

The Society For Care of Neurological Patients is holding a recital by the famous Swedish singer Olle Persson at the Royal Cultural Centre Wednesday 20th of September at 8.00 p.m. Tickets available at the Royal Cultural Centre.

FRIDAY'S RACES AT THE ROYAL RACING CLUB-TUNEIB

FIRST RACE 4.00 FOR BEGINNER HORSES DISTANCE 1400 METRES

Owner	Horse	Trainer	Jockey	Weight
1. Fahad A. El Azees	S. Imad	Owner	Basil	56
2. Khatim Mohammad Tartory	S. Eljazir	Owner	Basil	56
3. Tahir Salamin Hamad	S. Tahir	Owner	Yousef	56
4. A. El Kareem Abdulah	Dary	Owner	Rashed	54.5
5. Mohammad Salim Nabouy	Sabah	Owner	Kasim	54.5
6. Mohammad Salim Jabari	J. Faiez	Owner	Jabar	54.5
7. Dr. A. El Naeem A. Wandy	S. Maen	Owner	Ahmad	53
8. Michael Miteb El Faiez	Hanaa	Owner	Saad	51.5
9. Lorraine & Thamiir El Hadeed	Safah	Owner	Saad	50
10. Dr. A. El Naeem A. Wandy	S. Maen	Owner	Saad	50
11. Abdullah El Dawoud	Ghobar	Owner	Hiary	50

SECOND RACE 4.30 FOR BEGINNER HORSES DISTANCE 1000 METRES

Owner	Horse	Trainer	Jockey	Weight
1. Mashour Faisal A. Jnsib	T. El Thaneya	Owner	Younis	56
2. Mashour Faisal A. Jnsib	Shafaf	Owner	Yousef	53
3. Falek Lazzam El Hneel	Jamih	Owner	Mouss	54.5
4. Khalid Nazzei El Akid	Ghazalin	Owner	Mostafa	54.5
5. Nimir El Hmoud	B. Shams	Rida	Jamal	51.5
6. Nimir El Hmoud	Dinar	Rida	Hiary	50
7. H.H. Late Sheriff Nasir Stable	Waleah	Abbas	Saad	51.5
8. Nawaf Anwar El Shalan	Hattal	Zaidan	George	50
9. Sakir Fahad Lawansih	Adeh	Owner	Basil	50
10. Ghalib Haddadin	Timizh	Owner	Rashed	48.5
11. Samy Haddadin	F. Hanady	Owner	Rashed	48.5

THIRD RACE 5.00 FOR THIRD & SECOND CLASS HORSES DISTANCE 1400 METRES

Owner	Horse	Trainer	Jockey	Weight
1. Dr. A. El Naeem A. Wandy	Z. Maen	Owner	Jamal	59
2. Ghalib A. Jabir	Imad	Owner	George	59
3. Basil Yousef Awawdh	Gharaeb	Owner	Basil	59
4. Mohammad Khalid El Faiez	Kastal	Owner	Hiary	56
5. Barakat Alia	Sahir	Owner	Mostafa	52
6. Mohammad Khalil Marley	N. Faris	Owner	Yousef	51.5
7. Lorraine Mohammad A. El Naby	Mahababaty	Owner	Mouss	51.5
8. Salamin Mhady Bhayan	M. Assaf	Owner	Salamin	51.5
9. Talib El Naher	Sinaa	Owner	Kasim	48.5

FOURTH RACE 5.30 FOR THIRD CLASS HORSES DISTANCE 1000 METRES

Owner	Horse	Trainer	Jockey	Weight
1. Ghazy A. Jabir	M. Salf	Kamel	Mostafa	57
2. Oudlaty Marly Hamran	H. Marly	Owner	Salamin	56.5
3. Kamel Wasil Beharot	F. Khair	Khairidin	Rashed	56
4. Nimir El Hmoud	B. Rabadan	Rida	Jamal	54.5
5. Nimir El Hmoud	Rimal	Rida	Hiary	54.5
6. Nimir El Hmoud	U. Kashmir	Rida	Hiary	51.5
7. Eled A. El Naby Rabayah	H. Eled	Owner	Saad	54.5
8. Naeef Anwar Shalan	Murrah	Owner	Kasim	53.5
9. Mansour Anwar El Shalan	Saltamin	Abbas	Saad	53.5
10. H.H. Late Sheriff Nasir Stable	Sarim	Abbas	Anwar	53
11. Nawaf Anwar El Shalan	Read	Zaidan	George	50

FIFTH RACE 6.00 FOR THIRD & SECOND CLASS HORSES

Owner	Horse	Trainer	Jockey	Weight
1. Mansour Anwar El Shalan	Mazoun	Mohsin	George	58
2. Ghalib Haddadin	Tamouh	Owner	Salamin	57
3. Ibrahim Hary Baharat	Shaily	Owner	Salah	57
4. Najla Wasil Beharot	Wardan	Khairidin	Jamal	58
5. Aly Fares El Saad	J. El Saad	Khairidin	Rashed	55
6. Aly Fares El Saad	Saad Aly	Khairidin	Saad	54
7. Mohammad Omar El Hamran	F. Hamran	Owner	Hiary	51.5
8. Nawaf Anwar El Shalan	Ahid	Mohsin	Kasim	50

THE Daily Crossword by Fran Ragus

ACROSS

1 Dogie

5 Union defier

9 Friend of Pythias

14 Mixture

15 It, capital of old

16 Canoe

17 Trek or Haley

18 Roman road

19 Maritime volcano

20 Wood strip

21 Can, prime mixer

22 He takes osthapa

25 Offshore

29 Chaney

31 Touchy

32 Hinge

35 Sapp pod

37 Prevalence

38 Diver

39 Vehicle

40 Peace

42 goddess

43 Pit — (race action)

45 — upon (victim)

46 Power source: abbr.

48 Kind of sauce

49 Normal: abbr.

50 Withdraw

52 Small amount

56 Plane team

58 Short

59 Position

62 Top-notch

63 Albs of far

64 Kid's vehicle

65 Lichen

66 Stacked group

67 Lecher

68 Salt, spec.

69 "A — grows in Brooklyn"

DOWN

1 Enormous

2 Part of EAP

3 Give the — (prove to be untrue)

4 Battlefield protection

5 Allowance

6 Provide food

7 Local

8 Housing for soldiers

9 Arsenal

10 Action. spots

11 — de mar

12 Sagar suffix

13 Born

14 Hobnob

24 Demilitarized area

25 Flock

27 Old Gas coin

28 Salt, spec.

30 "A — grows in Brooklyn"

32 Bravo one

33 — Zola

34 Seal

35 Wash

36 Ventilated

38 Recruit's place

41 Military unit

44 Dictator

45 Salt

47 Cross

51 Sea duck

52 High IQ group

53 Pole in Scot. sports

54 Russ. decree

55 Carlo

57 Rust

58 Aves

60 — in fr

61 Is

© 1989 Tribune Media Services, Inc. All Rights Reserved.

Yesterday's Puzzle Solvers:

1. D. A. El Naeem A. Wandy	2. Ghalib A. Jabir	3. Basil Yousef Awawdh	4. Mohammad Khalid El Faiez	5. Barakat Alia	6. Mohammad Khalil Marley	7. Lorraine Mohammad A. El Naby	8. Salamin Mhady Bhayan	9. Talib El Naher
10. Dr. A. El Naeem A. Wandy	11. Abdullah El Dawoud	12. Sagar suffix	13. Born	14. Hobnob	24. Demilitarized area	25. Flock	27. Old Gas coin	28. Salt, spec.
29. Chaney	31. Touchy	32. Hinge	35. Sapp pod	37. Prevalence	38. Diver	39. Vehicle	40. Peace	42. goddess
43. Pit — (race action)	45. — upon (victim)	46. Power source: abbr.	48. Kind of sauce	49. Normal: abbr.	50. Withdraw	52. Small amount	56. Plane team	58. Short
59. Position	62. Top-notch	63. Albs of far	64. Kid's vehicle	65. Lichen	66. Stacked group	67. Lecher	68. Salt, spec.	69. "A — grows in Brooklyn"

Cinema CONCORD Tel: 677420

Hulk Hogan in NO HOLDS BARRED

Performances: 3:30, 6:30, 8:30, 10:30 p.m.

Cinema ALJOUR Tel: 675571

A NIGHT ON THE TOWN

Shows: 3:30, 6:30, 8:30, 10:30

Cinema PLAZA Tel: 677420

Hulk Hogan in NO HOLDS BARRED

Shows: 12:30, 3:30, 5:15, 6:30, 8:30, 10:30

S. Africans stage first legal rally since '86

CAPE TOWN (R) — Thousands of people singing freedom songs, dancing and waving posters saying "Stop killing our children" gathered in central Cape Town Wednesday for a protest unprecedented in recent years.

Disciplined crowds of anti-apartheid activists assembled for a march from Archbishop Desmond Tutu's Anglican cathedral after acting President F.W. de Klerk agreed in a dramatic climb-down Tuesday to tolerate the protest.

Police kept a low profile as the crowds gathered for the protest against police brutality. Normally all forms of outdoor demonstrations are banned under three-year-old emergency laws.

"It's unbelievable. I've never seen anything like this, said one white onlooker.

De Klerk, who is virtually certain to be confirmed as president Thursday, said after mediation by White House Deputy Secretary of State George Shultz that the government has no objection to peaceful and orderly protest." Tutu, World Reformed Church leader Allan Boesak, newly-elected white Mayor Gordon Oliver and John Drake, managing director of Shell Company, South Africa.

Tutu said in a letter urging Cape Town residents to join the march that it was against the police killing of 23 people during protests last week against parliamentary elections that excluded the four-to-one black majority.

"We are proud of the unprecedented outcry from ordinary Cape Towners at the response of the police to peaceful protest," he said.

The march was the first officially sanctioned by the government since emergency rule was imposed in June 1986 to crush a black uprising that claimed over 2,500 lives.

Police have used shotguns, whips, dogs and teargas to break up a series of gatherings in the past six weeks, mostly in and around Cape Town, under the banner of a national apartheid defiance campaign.

Reverend Allan Boesak, comforts the mothers of two teen-agers slain Wednesday during national elections, from which blacks were excluded

Tutu has been arrested twice in the past month for attempting to march from his church and others held have included his wife, Leah, Boesak and prominent academics.

Activist sources say over 1,000 people have been arrested and hundreds hurt in anti-election protests and police action against the defiance campaign that targeted white-only schools, hospitals, beaches and buses.

People alleged to have been killed by police last week included a baby, children aged three and five, a heavily pregnant 16-year-old and a 13-year-old paraplegic boy.

Cape Town police chief Flip Fompe vowed earlier this week to halt the march despite the proposed participation of Mayor Oliver and about half the city council, but de Klerk reversed his decision on Tuesday.

"The government has received definite assurances from the organisers of the march... with regard to the peaceful nature of the planned proceedings," he said.

Mazowiecki vows to change Poland

WARSAW (R) — Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki has pledged that the new Solidarity-dominated government will transform Poland, after ending 45 years of Communist rule.

Mazowiecki Tuesday outlined a programme of Western-style reforms to parliament, which swore in his 23-member coalition cabinet. It was the first formal break with Communist rule in Eastern Europe for more than 40 years.

Mazowiecki, 62, said Poles would find the reforms tough but there was no other way out of economic catastrophe. He had interrupted his speech after nearly fainting from exhaustion after months of hard bargaining over forming a government.

"We are faced with the historic task of a major economic and political about-turn amid the most extremely difficult circumstances," Mazowiecki, an adviser to the once-banned Solidarity trade union, told parliament.

"All this cannot be achieved without the prospect of bankruptcy and unemployment... but no other variant is possible," he said.

Parliament overwhelmingly approved Mazowiecki's programme and his cabinet of 11 Solidarity members, four Communists, one independent and seven members of two minority parties. The vote was 402 for, none against and 13 abstentions.

Marian Orzechowski, the Communist Party's parliamentary leader, pledged the party's loyalty to the new government.

In the northern city of Gdansk, where the independent union was born in 1980, Solidarity leader Lech Walesa said in a statement: "For the first time in half a century Poland has a government that millions of Poles can accept as their own."

Mazowiecki's programme included sweeping privatisation, the creation of a stock exchange, the lifting of price controls and imposition of tight money policies that would close inefficient factories and lead to unemployment.

Mazowiecki vowed to cut inflation, which he said threatened to reach 4,000 per cent annually if nothing was done, and called for foreign aid to ease the $39-billion foreign debt.

He also pledged to cut the budget deficit of three trillion zlotys ($3 billion), reduce subsidies, curb investment projects and head towards a convertible currency.

Despite the general tone of austerity, Mazowiecki said the government would carry out emergency measures to improve housing and the health service in order to prevent what he called an exodus of young people abroad.

Pacino returns to public view

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor Al Pacino is returning to public view after a long hiatus. The star of the two "Godfather" films and "Dog Day Afternoon" says in Vanity Fair magazine's October issue that he spent much of the past six years in dark glasses, false mustaches and disguised stage roles. Out of sight since filming "Scarface" in 1983, Pacino stars in the upcoming romantic thriller, "Sea of Love," with Ellen Barkin, and plays a surprisingly lighthearted cameo as the bad guy in Warren Beatty's "Dick Tracy." He also has agreed to play Michael Corleone for the third time after leaving for the third time director Francis Ford Coppola said he had come up with a new concept for the third "Godfather" film. Diane Keaton, with whom Pacino has had a relationship for several years, again will play Corleone's estranged wife. Pacino, 49, said he relished his time in disguise. "There's feeling that you experience when you put on glasses and a mustache and you blend in," he told the magazine. "I felt so free. I was excited."

Teddy bears travel with soldiers

EL PASO, (AP) — When the going gets rough on a rafting trip down the Rio Grande, 27 British soldiers will have something familiar to fall back on — their teddy bear. Paddington Bear, the well-travelled teddy bear found at Paddington station in England in the children's books of the 1960s and 1970s, was front and center in a blue duffle coat and red hat and boots when the soldiers from the 45th field regiment of the royal artillery began paddling the river Monday. "He's going to travel the full length of the Rio Grande, as far as it is navigable," said Lieutenant Simon Crane, the team leader from Oxford, England. The 1,770-kilometre trip is part of a yearly ritual of adventurous training for British army soldiers. The rafting trip, financed in part by private donations, is expected to raise about $27,000 for Action Research for Crippled Children, an organization that discovered a serum for rubella and developed the sonogram, said helicopterman Sergeant Bob Lloyd. The charity uses Paddington bear, created by author Michael Bond, as its mascot.

Fly-by turns fly-behind

SEATTLE (AP) — What was supposed to have been a fly-by of the new Boeing 737-500 for its customers turned into a fly-behind. The new jet, flanked in tight formation by a 737-300 and a 737-400, was scheduled Monday to fly in front of the guests waiting at the Museum of Flight at Boeing field. But the jets flew over the building and behind the spectators. "I'm not sure what happened," said Dick Schlem, a Boeing commercial airplane spokesman. "I think the pilots of the planes believed they were to fly over the building and not over the runway." Some guests did catch a glimpse of the formation, although the sun was directly overhead at the time, Schlem said. "Some people saw most of the first plane, half of the second and none of the third," he said with a laugh. The guests included officials of major customers for the 737-500, including Southwest Airlines, Braniff, TWA and Alaska Airlines. The 737-500, Boeing's smallest commercial jet, was first flown June 30 and is aimed at the same market as the 737-200, which first flew in 1967 and ended production in 1988. The 500-series planes, which sell for $24 million each, carry about the same number of passengers as the 200 series, but can save 20 per cent of the fuel.

Global weather

(major world cities)

	MIN.	MAX.	Weather
AMSTERDAM	18	24	75 Cloudy
ATHENS	20	28	81 Clear
BAHRAIN	28	36	97 Clear
BANGKOK	25	34	93 Clear
BUENOS AIRES	10	19	68 Clear
CAIRO	24	75	99 Clear
CHICAGO	11	22	72 Cloudy
COPENHAGEN	11	17	63 Clear
FRANKFURT	14	14	57 Clear
GENEVA	10	20	77 Clear
HONG KONG	28	34	93 Clear
ISTANBUL	20	27	81 Cloudy
LONDON	16	21	69 Cloudy
LOS ANGELES	16	26	79 Clear
MADRID	15	25	77 Rain
MEXICO	29	45	113 Clear
MONTREAL	22	28	84 Cloudy
MOSCOW	13	20	65 Cloudy
NEW DELHI	25	77	97 Clear
NEW YORK	20	28	87 Cloudy
PARIS	15	25	77 Cloudy
ROME	18	24	75 Cloudy
SYDNEY	18	24	75 Rain
TOKYO	24	31	88 Clear
VIENNA	14	23	75 Clear

M — indicates missing information.

Bomb explodes as Sri Lankan talks begin

COLOMBO (AP) — A bomb exploded in a parked car in downtown Colombo Wednesday shortly before the start of a peace conference aimed at negotiating an end to ethnic violence that has killed more than 16,000 people.

No group claimed responsibility for the blast, which occurred in a lot near the central telephone office about 45 minutes before the conference opened but caused little damage and no casualties.

Police blamed the People's Liberation Front, a militant Sinhalese group trying to overthrow the country's Sinhalese-dominated government because of its attempts to negotiate peace with minority Tamil rebels.

Front members boycotted Wednesday's peace conference, called by President Ranasinghe Premadasa for all political parties to try to resolve six years of violence in this Indian ocean island nation, said a government spokesman, who asked not to be identified.

According to the spokesman, 69 delegates from 21 of the country's 27 recognised political parties attended the conference under tight security.

Five of the parties have proposed the formation of a provisional government, fresh elections, scrapping of the presidency and a return to a British-style parliamentary system.

Premadasa has said he would consider proposals made by all parties to restore peace to the island, crippled by fear as the wave of killings by rebels, security forces and pro-government vigilante groups continues.

The fighting began in 1983 when Tamil guerrillas began their war for a separate homeland in northern and eastern Sri Lanka. Tamils make up 18 per cent of Sri Lanka's 16 million people and claim they are denied jobs and education by the Sinhalese, who make up 75 per cent of the population and dominate the government and military.

Premadasa's predecessor, former President Junius Jayewardene, attempted to end the insurgency in July 1987 by signing a peace accord that offered the Tamils limited autonomy if they would put down their weapons. Jayewardene also invited peacekeeping forces from neighbouring India to supervise the arms' surrender.

But the largest and most militant Tamil rebel group, the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam, rejected the accord and turned their guns on the Indian soldiers.

The Tamil insurgency has claimed more than 11,000 lives, including 1,000 Indian soldiers. The accord also triggered a backlash by Sinhalese militants, who claimed that it offered too many concessions to the Tamils and compromised the country's sovereignty by bringing Indian troops to Sri Lankan soil.

Yeltsin urges Bush to save perestroika

WASHINGTON (R) — Boris Yeltsin, the maverick Soviet politician who has sharply criticised the pace of Mikhail Gorbachev's reforms, has asked U.S. President George Bush for help in saving perestroika.

The request was made Tuesday at the White House during a hastily-arranged meeting that was a matter of concern for White House aides, who feared too warm a reception for Yeltsin could be construed as interference in Soviet domestic affairs.

Yeltsin met Bush for 15 minutes on the third day of his eight-day U.S. tour. He later met Secretary of State James Baker and congressional leaders.

After the meeting with Baker, Yeltsin said, "in my discussion with the president... today I made a list of 10 issues which could be discussed between us which would serve to rescue perestroika."

He did not answer questions on the substance of the 10 issues, but the State Department said Yeltsin told Baker the kinds of changes needed to help perestroika included acceptance of private property, movement towards a mixed economy and need for external investment in the Soviet Union.

The White House sought to play down the meeting between the president and Yeltsin, a political maverick who has said Gorbachev has six months to a year to make his reforms work.

"The president noted his very positive relationship with General Secretary Gorbachev and reiterated his support for perestroika," the White House said in a statement. "The president emphasised that the American people share his hope for the success of the reform movement in the Soviet Union."

White House spokesman Martin Fitzwater said Yeltsin was regarded as "an important spokesman for his point of view," but added: "We don't want to do anything to foster internal conflict that might be associated with his tour."

In White House parlance,

Boris Yeltsin

Bush's meeting with Yeltsin was a "drop-by" — that is, he dropped by while Yeltsin was meeting National Security Adviser Brent Scowcroft.

Tempering the gloomy forecasts from Yeltsin, however, were comments from a leading Soviet economist who said perestroika was troubled but not doomed.

"We have a crisis in the economy, and if we still hesitate and if we do something for the worse, there could be trouble within a year," said Abel Aganbegyan, a member of the Soviet Academy of Sciences and a key economic adviser to Gorbachev.

"We could see difficulties and social unrest... massive strikes, for example... but Yeltsin's idea that nothing will be done is not true," said Aganbegyan, in Washington to promote his newly published book, "Inside Perestroika."

Asked what the Bush administration could do to support the Soviet Union's economic reform, Aganbegyan said progress in disarmament talks could help the Soviets reduce the crushing burden of military spending.

"We are planning to decrease our military expenditures over the next five years," he said. "But this depends on the progress of disarmament talks."

Yeltsin's U.S. tour resembles a whistle-stop political campaign. He scheduled news conferences and speeches in Chicago late Tuesday, in Philadelphia and Minneapolis Wednesday and Indianapolis Thursday. He is to leave the United States next Monday.

San Salvador, rebels set for peace talks

MEXICO CITY (R) — A Salvadoran government commission and left-wing rebel leaders gathered in Mexico City Wednesday to begin peace talks which Salvadorans hope will end a decade of civil war.

The Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front (FMLN) rebels said their guns would fall silent during the day as part of a unilateral ceasefire offered by the guerrillas.

The talks, expected to last two days, are the first since Alfredo Cristiani, of the right-wing Nationalist Republican Alliance (ARENA) Party, became state president of the Central American nation June 1.

"Everyone has great expectations because it is the first meeting between ARENA and the FMLN," guerrilla commander Ana Guadalupe Martinez told Reuters.

The five-member government commission, which arrived in Mexico City Tuesday, is headed by Justice Minister Oscar Santamaria and Presidency Minister Juan Martinez Varela.

The rebel delegation is headed by commanders Joaquin Villalobos, seen as the ideological and military leader of the FMLN, Shafik Handal.

The rebel and government delegations avoided journalists on their arrival in Mexico City and the site of the talks was not immediately made public.

The dialogue is the fourth since the outbreak of El Salvador's civil war in 1979 and the first since the rebels held an inconclusive meeting with then-President Jose Napoleon Duarte in October 1987.

During the decade of civil war, an estimated 70,000 Salvadorans have been killed and one in 10 have fled their homes.

The United States has pumped $4 billion in economic and military aid into the country, which has a population of about five million. But despite 10 years of fighting, neither the guerrillas nor the armed forces close to solving the conflict militarily.

Diplomats say Cristiani appears sincere in his willingness to discuss peace with the rebels. They add that any prolonged ceasefire would help him consolidate his market-oriented economic reforms, which the government hopes will take much of the force out of the rebel movement.

U.S. drugs war could cost $50 billion over five years

WASHINGTON (R) — President George Bush's war on drugs could cost $50 billion over the next five years, federal drug policy director William Bennett told the U.S. Congress Tuesday.

Responding to Democratic charges that Bush's plan will prove inadequate to reduce the U.S. drug habit and stem the flow of cocaine from Latin America, Bennett said $7.86 billion sought by the president for 1990 was only the beginning and estimated the long-term price tag could add up to more than six times that figure over five years.

"Are we willing to spend the money needed? There are flaws in this plan," Democratic Congressman Larry Smith of Florida said when Bennett testified before the House of Representatives Foreign Affairs Committee.

"I don't think it's unreasonable to think that we're talking about a $50-billion programme over five years, give or take," Bennett said.

"That's a substantial investment," he added in giving the first firm long-range estimate of the cost. "Remember, the entire drug budget in 1986 was $2 billion."

Bennett gave no hint that Bush had changed his opposition to increase taxes to pay for the war, as some Democrats have suggested he must. The White House wants to finance the fight by selectively shifting funds from other federal programmes.

The administration Tuesday scorned a plan by Senator Robert Byrd to add $2.2 billion to Bush's $7.86-billion request for 1990 by making an across-the-board cut of about one-half of one per cent in other federal programmes.

White House spokesman Martin Fitzwater suggested the move by the West Virginia Democrat would be vetoed by Bush. Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams said "Meat-axe" budget cuts would hurt defence programmes.

Australian city declares 'toadal' war on giant pests

By Richard Hill
The Associated Press

SYDNEY — Poisonous toads that grow to the size of dinner plates are invading Brisbane, Australia's third largest city, but there are plans to make them croak.

Councillor Geg Stegman pledged Tuesday that the city of about one million people on the gold coast strip of the northeastern seaboard will be toad-free within five years.

The amphibians, known as cane toads, measure up to 30 centimetres across and weigh 2.75 kilograms.

Stegman told the AP that with the onset of the southern hemisphere summer, millions of the ugly toads are awaking from winter hibernation.

"Within two weeks, they'll be everywhere," he said.

Eradication tactics include ringing the city suburbs with tape-recording of the male toad's rattling mating call to attract females. Then trappers will pounce, shove the toads into plastic bags and freeze them to death, Stegman said.

Householders also are being advised to sprinkle deterrents on toads found in backyards because it "does the job quickly."

Brisbane resident Anne Nakano complained that the space underneath her home, which is built on stilts, is crawling with toads.

"We stamp on them when we open the front door in the morning to pick up the milk," she said.

Stegman said cane toads, or "budo marinas," are becoming Australia's public enemy number one. He said the city council has decided against offering a bounty for every toad killed because "knowing the Australian entrepreneurial spirit, they'll start breeding them."

"They're in plague proportions," he said. "I'm not advocating that people stamp them to death or spear them pitchforks, but something has to be done."

A children's pastime in Brisbane is to use cane toads as footballs.

Cane toads have marched across northern Australia and south to the state of New South Wales since they were introduced from South America in 1935 to eradicate a beetle plague that was destroying Australia's sugar cane crops.

The toads were first shipped to the city of Cairns, 1,400 kilometres north of Brisbane. Since then they have also spread across the northern "top end" of Australia into the spectacular and unspoiled Kakadu National Park in the northern territory.

"They're now marching on Sydney, it's only a hop, skip and a jump from the (static) border," Stegman said.

"Having the tape-recording is a very easy way to get rid of them but the state does not have enough money to reach every household," Stegman said. "We are bringing out brochures and looking to private enterprise to produce more tapes."

The state of Queensland is currently holding a contest to find the biggest toad to be entered in the Guinness Book of World Records. The leading candidate is Mary Lou, who measures 30 centimetres across, weighs three kilograms and eats 11 mice a day as well as a diet of eggs mixed with insects.

"She's strong and she's a very good chance for the world title," said owner, Geoff Smith.

The Queensland Museum said cane toads pose a major threat to Australia's unique fauna and wildlife.

A biologist said the toads, when cornered and frightened, squirt a liquid that asphyxiates fully grown dogs like German shepherds.

"They'll kill a dog in 30 seconds," the official said. "They devour everything in their path. They eat rodents, mice, frogs and even snakes — everything except humans."

MALE AND FEMALE TYPISTS To Type English

The Jordan Press Foundation is in need of typists in English with high efficiency to be trained on offset machines.

Call on the director of the printing press at the foundation during office hours as of today and until the end of the office hours Saturday Sept. 16, 1989.